IN FAVOR OF OREGON

An Important Decision by the General Land Office.

REGARDING INDEMNITY LANDS

Selections to Be Allowed for the Sixteenth and Thirty Sixth Sections Embraced in Indian Reservations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The acting commissioner of the general land office has granted a motion to review the decision of Commissioner Stockslager of February 25, 1889, in which indemnity to school lands in the Siletz and Grand Ronde Indian reservations was refused.

The law granting school lands to Oregon provide for indemnity in cases where lands are sold or otherwise disposed of. The acting commissioner holds that the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections, where within the boundaries of the Indian reservations at the time of the taking effect of the grant, I think the weight of opinion is that a reservation for Indians is a disposal of land in the meaning of the act. Whether I am right or not on this point I feel safe in following the opinion of the secretary of the interior in the Colorado case. The facts in that case are similar to these and I therefore revoke the decision of February 25, 1889, and hold that the state of Oregon has a right to select indemnity for school sections lying within the Siletz and Grand Ronde Indian reservations. As for all other questions touching selections and lists they are received for proper action under the law when the lists come before the department for approval.

This decision is regarded as important as it will govern in all similar cases of which there is a large number in different parts of the West.

SOUTHERN PREJUDICE.

No Staterooms or First-Class Cars for Frederick Douglass

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Frederick Douglass, our new minister to Hayti, has experienced some discomfiture over the outlook for facilities at the hands of steamboat men and railroads in getting to Norfolk, Va., whence he sails next Saturday on the United States man of war Cashpee for Port au Prince. For many years colored men have been refused staterooms on Potomac and Chesapeake bay steamboats and have been consigned to Jim Crow coaches on railroads south of the national capital. It was nothing unusual therefore that a man of Frederick Douglass's standing before the world could not get first-class accommodation on a steamboat or train going south because his skin was black.

Mr. Douglass would not care personally if he were compelled to sleep on a lounge through one night going down the Potomac to Norfolk, or to ride in a smoking car six hours or so if he went by rail, but he very rightly saw that the act would be caught up by the press and heralded to Hayti and that he would not be received at his post of duty with the same respect that he would if he were treated respectfully in his own country.

The department of state heard of Mr. Douglass's predicament and relieved him by having the United States steamer Dispatch ordered here to carry him to Norfolk.

ALASKA MAIL ROUTE

The Postoffice Department Calls for Bids for Star Route Contracts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The postoffice department has asked for the following bids: For star route contracts in Alaska to run for four years from July 1 next: From Port Townsend (Wash.) by Loring (Alaska) Fort Wrangel, Douglass, Juneau and Killisnoo to Sitka one thousand miles and back in suitable steamboats; bond required, $5,000; bid $56 000. From Fort Wrangle by Klawock to Howeam 190 miles and back, four trips per annum, to leave Fort Wrangle every four weeks on the arrival of the steamer from Port Townsend, to arrive at Howeam in twelve days to leave Howeam every four weeks and to arrive in Fort Wrangle in time to connect with the next steamer for Port Townsend; bond required with bid $2,000.

THE PENSION OFFICE.

General Powell's Friends Hopeful of His Appointment.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—To night the friends of General Powell of Illinois are hopeful that he will be selected by President Harrison as pension commissioner. General Powell is a resident of Belleville and a prominent G. A. R. man of that section.

A. B. Campbell of Kansas, whose name has been used in connection with this office, is said by Western men to be really seeking the appointment as district attorney for Kansas.

WARNER WILL NOT ACCEPT.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 24.—Major Warner arrived from Washington this morning. In an interview he replied to the question: "Will you accept the position of commissioner of pensions?" "No, I will not."

COMMISSIONER ROOSEVELT.

What He Thinks of the Political Outlook in Montana and North Dakota.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Theodore Roosevelt civil service commissioner has returned from a ... hunt in Montana and a stay on his ranch in North Dakota.

Concerning the political outlook in those two territories he said: "I am confident that Carter will be elected to congress in Montana by a good round majority and I think that we have at least an even chance for the entire state ticket and legislature. I know nothing of my candidacy for the United States senate in North Dakota except what I have seen in the newspapers. I don't know how the report got started. I take no interest in it whatever."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—An increase of pension has been granted John Kneser, of Washington territory.

New postoffices have been established at the following places on the Pacific coast: Oregon—Paradise, Wallowa county, with John Cairns as postmaster. Progress, Washington county, with Joseph Hengley as postmaster. Washington territory—Ballard, King county, with Abraham G. Thompson as postmaster.

Accepted the Resignation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The secretary of the treasury has accepted the resignation of Dr. James I. Kimball as director of the mint, to take effect October 15. Edward Leech is now acting as director, with the understanding that he will be appointed to the directorship as soon as the office becomes vacant.

"CITIZEN" TRAIN ARRESTED

A Toledo Pawnbroker Who Claims $1000 of George Francis.

BOSTON, Sept. 24.—George Francis Train was arrested at noon at the Tremont House on a judgment for $1000.

Spiller the man who brought suit, belongs to Toledo. Train says that in 1872 he guaranteed $10 for John A. Lant, editor of the Toledo Sun to buy type with. Lant told him that he would not be called upon to pay the amount and simply asked him to guarantee it. Spiller is a pawnbroker, and he advanced some of the money. In 1876 he got a judgment against Train in Toledo for $10, and four years later wanted to settle as Train says, for $150. Train says Lant told him that he paid it all. Spiller then got a judgment for $30 and now, after thirteen years comes with the amount swollen to $1000. When asked if he intended to pay it, Train said: "Of course I'll go to jail."

COMMITTED TO JAIL.

Train was arraigned in the municipal court this afternoon. He presented his own case, making a very humorous address. As he refused to take the poor debtor's oath, or furnish bonds he was committed to the county jail. He accepted his fate philosophically.

NAVAL MANEUVERS.

Movements of the Atlanta, the Boston and the Baltimore.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 24.—The United States cruiser Atlanta went out to-day for maneuvers and turning trials. The high speed trial yesterday was not satisfactory. The examining board is now finished with her.

The Boston is expected in about two weeks.

The Baltimore will come about the same time.

The apprentice boys of the United States training station had a sham fight on here last this afternoon. To-night they repulsed an attack on their camp. Both maneuvers were successful.

THE AMERICAN NATIONS

Europe Alarmed Over the Probable Effect of the Washington Conference.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A special from Washington says the state department is receiving just now from our representatives in Europe a great many interesting extracts from European journals expressing alarm over the effect upon European trade of the coming conference of American nations. Some of them are almost historical in their appeals to the South American republics to distrust our advance and continue to trade in Europe.

The Le Temps of Paris has been publishing a series of articles expressing the gravest fears as to the consequences the congress. The paper urges the English and French merchants to make every effort to induce the Hispano Americas to adhere to their ancient systems.

The Liberal of Madrid has also been publishing similar comments on the congress.

One of the latest communications received at the state department is from Minister Grant, dated August 3, 1889. It is a long article from the Neues Fremdenblatt, the organ of the minister of foreign affairs in Austria Hungary. It says: The United States government has invited all the governments of the new world to take part in a congress to be held in Washington under the watchword of United America, and especially American union against Europe. Uniform weights, measures and coinage are to be introduced and a court of arbitration appointed to settle disputes between the American states. Last but not least, new and closer commercial connections with America are to be established. If these possibilities should be realized by the United States a large part of our workmen and a still larger part of the German trade and shipping [illegible] would be in danger of losing their employment. It would be a serious loss for Europe if the politicians of Washington should succeed in uniting the whole American continent not in a Zollverein but in a territory surrounded by insurmountable customs barriers.

The Vienna papers go on to say that the states to the south of the United States are not likely to submit to the wishes of the millionaires of the Union. It follows in this statement by giving them advice as to where they should sell their raw materials and by the [illegible] products and urges them not by attempts to change their present European trade routes for fear the Americans will take undue advantage of them.

The comments of the papers in three of the principal capitals of Europe are not the only ones that could be quoted but they are enough to show that the opinion of the European press is working up to the importance of this congress and are attempting by a [illegible] fair and unfair, to prejudice it throughout all European countries.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—To-day's game was a pitcher's contest, with the honors about even. A bad muff by the pitcher in the first inning lost the game for Chicago. Score—Boston 2, Chicago 1. Base hits—Boston 6, Chicago 8. Errors—Boston 4, Chicago 3. Batteries—Boston, Radbourne, Carroll and Kelly; Chicago, Hutchinson and Farrell. Umpire—Powers.

THE OMAHA CLUB TO BE SOLD TO BOSTON.

OMAHA, Sept. 24.—At a secret meeting of the Omaha Baseball Society to-day it was decided to accept the proposition of the Boston Club for the sale of the Omaha team. Should this go through the result will be that Omaha will have no team in the field next year.

THE PROPOSED BASEBALL DEAL.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24.—The editor of a sporting paper of this city has received a letter from a member of the Boston club discussing the proposed new deal in baseball for next season. This player says that the idea that the players will run things is all humbug. They are simply hired men who are behind the scenes and not likely to invest large sums of money without knowing what is in store for them. It will simply be a transfer to a new set of directors who will conduct the affairs in a more liberal and advantageous manner.

WILL MEET IN NOVEMBER.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—All the members of the cabinet have returned to Paris. The matter will be summoned to meet in November. It is estimated that if support of the government comprise 300 moderate republicans and the members of the left. The chamber is to be annual the elections of Boulanger and Dillon.

THE IVES TRIAL.

The Case in the Hands of the Jury, Who Were Locked Up for the Night.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The Ives case opened this morning with a summing up by the prosecution. Colonel Bellows finished the address to the jury at 3.30.

After a desultory discussion of certain points with, Ives counsel, the latter made a number of statements which he termed corrections of Fellows's argument.

Recorder Smith's charge to the jury was lengthy. On the whole it was an impartial and clear exposition of the facts and the law governing them.

The jury retired about 5 o'clock.

At 10 the jury sent a communication to the recorder asking for further instructions. They were taken to the court room and asked to have a portion of the recorder's charge read to them from the stenographer's notes. Lawyer Brooke strenuously objected to the reading of the stenographer's notes, and took exception to the recorder's ruling. The jury were then sent back.

At 11.35, as the jury had not reached a verdict Recorder Smyth locked them up for the night.

A Testimonial to Harriet Beecher Stowe.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 24.—The opera house was crowded to overflowing this afternoon to witness the historical tableau as a testimonial to Harriet Beecher Stowe. The tableau illustrating national events from Columbus to date and was designed especially to show the progress of woman. The author and manager is Scott Pond of Boston. Miss Livermore is the lecturer. Isabella Beecher Hooker personates Mrs. Stowe.

A SCENE OF AGONY

Five Lives Lost in a Train Collision at Chicago.

THE VICTIMS SCALDED TO DEATH

A Terrible Responsibility Resting Upon the Engineer of a Freight Train—Others Terribly Injured.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Five innocent people paid the penalty of the [illegible] engineer of the ... train at Seventy-seventh street this city this evening.

A suburban train on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern road left the Chicago depot at 5:30 this afternoon. Here it was [illegible] caught up by a dummy. This evening the train left ... bound for Washington Heights. When it reached a point upon the ... at the rate of twenty miles an hour, a heavy freight train on the same track [illegible] no time for flight. The engineer reversed the engine but with almost unlimited speed power into the passenger coach in the rear. The vestibuled car was literally torn to pieces with almost unbelievable swiftness. Wood, iron and glass were mingled in a confused mass. Those who escaped with their lives were terrified to such a degree that they were unable to render any assistance to the unfortunate victims. The engineer of the freight train, who was responsible for the accident, was arrested.

Willing hands lent all the assistance possible, but the engineer of the freight train failed to stop the train which was blown out by the force of the collision and he death and dying were left to their sad fate for nearly an hour.

Strange to say not a person was killed outright by the collision and the loss of life being solely attributable to the fact that the [illegible] were scalded to death by escaping steam. Those who were taken out were found to be terribly mangled. The flesh dropped from their limbs and their glaring eyes told of the horrible experience.

When a thorough search had been completed it was found that three ladies and two children had been killed outright and that eight others were in a dying condition. Six other persons were seriously injured. Later the six injured were hurriedly conveyed to their homes and the dead and dying were taken to the morgue.

The list of the killed is as follows: Mrs. [illegible] G. McKenzie, Fred Hurlbut, Mrs. Brown, unknown woman all of Washington Heights. Those most seriously injured are: Guy M. of Seventy sixth and Wallace streets fatally; Miss A. W. Steele, Anton Suberg and [illegible] Harden of Washington Heights. The others sustained but slight injuries.

The wreck appears to have been entirely the result of the almost criminal carelessness of [illegible] Thornley. The passenger train was on its regular time, and the freight train regardless of the time at which it was due plunged into the coach, running at the rate of twelve miles an hour within the city limits.

Both Thornley and his fireman jumped and escaped. The engineer has disappeared.

THE FRENCH ELECTIONS

Republican Journals Jubilant Over Their Victory.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Republican journals are jubilant over the result of Sunday's elections. They say a second ballot will only add to the success of the republicans. They regret the defeat of Ferry and express a hope that his absence from the chamber will be only temporary.

The Republique Francaise says the country has elected a government majority and has given itself to be tired of former divisions and of the chamber to attend to national interests to the exclusion of problems tending to cause dissensions.

The Journal des Debats has not great confidence in the wisdom of the new ministry.

The monarchist and Boulangist journals express disappointment at the result and say they still hope the second ballots will strengthen the opposition of the opposition.

GENERAL BOULANGER TALKS.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—An interview with Boulanger said he has no hope of his party having a majority in the new chamber of deputies. He had not however much faith in the firmness of the government which had every here and there votes with ferocious characteristics. The republican majority would prove unmanageable and the country would soon be calling him to power.

WILL MEET IN NOVEMBER.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—All the members of the cabinet have returned to Paris. The matter will be summoned to meet in November. It is estimated that if support of the government comprise 300 moderate republicans and the members of the left. The chamber is to be annual the elections of Boulanger and Dillon.

THE CZAR'S PERIL.

A Railway Station Wrecked and One Man Killed.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—A story reaches here from Petersburg to the effect that the Czar and Czarina, while returning from Livadia to Petersburg, were [illegible] by a terrific explosion of dynamite caused by a [illegible] for Coppenhagen a chest of dynamite exploded at Peteroff station. The station was badly wrecked and a railway signal man killed. It is believed it was the intention to have the explosion take place when the czar passed through the station on his way to the train but this was [illegible] some mistake occurred before the arrival of his majesty's departure.

THE SPANIARDS AROUSED.

A Conference Over the Recent Hostilities of the Natives of Morocco.

MADRID, Sept. 24.—A long conference was held to-day between the ministers of war and of foreign affairs concerning the [illegible] of the Spanish gunboat by natives on the Moroccan coast. As a result a cable dispatch was sent to the Spanish minister at Tangier instructing him to [illegible] upon the Sultan that reparation must be made for the insult to the Spanish flag.

SAILED FOR THE RIFF COAST.

TANGIER, Sept. 24.—The Spanish corvette Nautilus has sailed for the Riff coast. On board the vessel is the commissioner from the sultan charged to order the immediate release of the Spanish sailors recently captured by Riffians.

CABLE NOTES.

Sailed for Montreal.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The Star says Rev. Brooke Herford, who recently disappeared in a mysterious manner, sailed August 29 for Montreal booked in the name of Wilson. He field ostensibly started for Ireland to deliver addresses in favor of home government, and in opposition to the agitation in favor of home rule and it was believed by many that he had met with foul play in that country.

Turkish Despotism in Crete.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Dispatches from Crete say that the Christian inhabitants of the island are fleeing to the mountains. Their cattle and other property is being stolen by the Turks. Many Christians have been cast into prison.

An American Robber Sentenced.

MELBOURNE, Sept. 24.—An American named Bruce Allen who was arrested in London for a bank robbery committed here, was sentenced to [illegible] twelve years of penal servitude.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Ex Surgeon-General Joseph Beak U. S. N. died Monday at his residence in Philadelphia. He was placed on the retired list in 1876.

The commission of George O. Eaton of Montana as surveyor general of Montana was signed by the president and forwarded yesterday.

Hon. M. M. Southworth, one of the early settlers of Niagara county, N. Y., killed himself yesterday. No cause is known. He was one of the earliest and most eminent anti slavery men and one of the first members of the republican party.

In the circuit court at Wheeling, W. Va., yesterday, the case of the state against Harry Hall indicted for embezzling the funds of Ohio was called. The defendant failed to appear and his bond was forfeited. Beyond a where-about unknown.

The government printing office has completed the immense work of printing from the contested election cases, which will be for settlement before the first congress. A total number of pages in the entire work is [illegible] which amounts to 6,000 ems.

Lewis Brothers & Co., dry goods commission merchants of New York, have made a formal offer of their creditors to compromise at fifty cents on the dollar. The creditors to whom the offer has been presented have expressed a willingness to accept the terms, and have the firm resting easy.

The President Returned.

DEER PARK, Sept. 24.—President Harrison and Senator Davis returned to Deer Park this afternoon after a stormy trip. A NEW CATHOLIC COLLEGE.

A Large Institute To Be Established at Santa Monica, Cal

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—The plan for establishing a large Catholic college at Santa Monica has finally taken definite shape Twenty two acres of land has been tendered by Henry Crippen for the purpose and been accepted by the mother general of the order of the Sisters of St Joseph at St Louis Instructions were given to begin the work at once and the ground will be broken Thursday

The building is to be three stories high and will be constructed of pressed brick and granite. It will be among with a large court in the center, in which will be placed a lake of artificial water It is intended to make the institute not only one of learning, but it will be also the cradle seat of the order in the United States. The Mother General will move to it from St Louis, when it is completed It will accommodate 1500 pupils and 40 nuns and novices and in addition to these a seminary is to be constructed on two acres of land by Bishop Mora, and this will be occupied by seminary priests

"I see by the papers that we are going to expend from $800 000 to $1 000 000 on the building and grounds remarked the Mother Superior nun but we don't expect to spend less than we did, for the St Louis institution and that cost us $300 000

It is expected that it will take tow years to complete the structure.

THEY WERE EVIDENTLY MARRIED.

BRIDAL VEIL, Or., Sept 24

A dispute took place between A and B in a down town restaurant to-day over the relation of two people at a neighboring table A maintained that they were married and B maintained they were not The parties in question were discussing the manner of bringing up a boy by some indifferent papa and mother in law whom they knew The woman leaned her elbow on the table, supporting a piece of bread on a fork with her mouth and talked without the least embarrassment through the mouthfuls of cold slaw which she frequently took

B's table jowled and laughed and looked into each other's eyes B said their expressions argued against the possibility of their being man and wife A insisted, that their absolute oblivion to everybody about them and even to their own ill manners, supported his opinion

B protested that no man and wife ever found that exhilarating enjoyment in conversation for ten consecutive minutes that these people seemed to find

A called B's attention to the subject of their conversation, and remarked that un married people never discussed life bringing up of children unless in a general way So the dispute waxed to a pitch of excitement that at last called for a wager and each promised himself to ascertain at any cost the true relation of the man and woman Meanwhile cold slaw had been succeeded by mutton hash, which was washed down by coffee The end of the repast was reached and the man arose, while his companion gulped down the dregs of her coffee Her escort took his hat and coat from a peg and stood the heavy gold headed umbrella against the carved edge of the table It fell to the floor with a bang and there it lay until she could throw her shawl about her grab her gloves and hastily pick it up As she joined him at the desk he was taking in change for a $20 bill and deposited it in his breeches pocket Then he flung his coat over his back and shoved his hat off his forehead and thrust a cigar between his teeth and opening the door passed through on the street, leaving the woman to close it after him B gazed at the door a moment then silently passed the amount of the wager over to A

Here is a man who ought to be better known to fame His name is Charles E Siseme and he is an English traveler fresh from India, who was present in the breakfast room of the Lathrop station the other morning, saw Terry assault Judge Field saw the ruffian shot dead and through the whole of that extraordinary scene which made a sensation for the entire continent, went on calmly eating his breakfast at the same table This was very like Charlotte in the ballad The explanation is easy Mr Siseme was a new arrival, and didn't propose to write himself down a greenhorn by displaying astonishment at anything He doubtless reads the Saturday Review and the London Telegraph regularly was proudly conscious that he was well informed about all the customs of the country, including shooting off eyes at breakfast on railroad stations, and simply didn't propose to give himself away We wish to have it distinctly understood that Mr Siseme is no tenderfoot

Taxpayers, Think of It!

Puyallup Commerce

The books of the territory show that at some $7 have been spent in the auditor's department for incidental expenses Under this head comes ink—undoubtedly half of this $7 was for ink Now, by a reasonable method of figuring we have $3 50 spent for writing fluid where $1 would have done just as well And who is responsible for this extravagance? Why John Milligan Murphy, who insists on writing out in full every name his parents gave him Not many of us can afford to have the luxury of three names Our officials should have everything they need, but there should be no willful waste to make woeful want. Think of this, you taxpayers and vote for the man with a short name and a long head—Tom Reed, who will make a good state auditor.

Union Pacific Officials Disarm Knowledge About Numerous Rumors—The Split in the N. P.

KANSAS CITY Sept 24—The inter-state railroad commissioners session in this city to-day took a recess until Wednesday next in order to attend a session at Lawrence, Kansas That body has already passed until next Wednesday and will not reconvene here by the legal construction until Thursday when it passed through Leavenworth where quick action was received The next conference will be held at Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe general offices in this city when the Pacific railroads will be represented by their general managers and traffic officers

The cases of most general interest were those of the Merchants of Illinois against the Southern Pacific for alleged unjust discrimination in freight rates against them in favor of Missouri river points and for the same reason against the Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe The complainants charge that the railroads discriminate against them in favor of Missouri river points by collusion over the ocean rate on sugar in carload lots from San Francisco to Kansas City Leavenworth and Atchison and Denver to Missouri river points They charge specifically that the rate on sugar in carload lots from San Francisco to Kansas City is $1 75 per 100 pounds while the rate to Humboldt 117 miles nearer San Francisco is but $1 50 per 100 pounds The general question involved is for the settlement of all roads in substance to be same to all points in the state of Missouri on the ground that the Missouri river is the dividing line between the east and west for the purpose of rates

OLYMPIA'S CLIMATE.

Mild Winters and Cool Summers, Both Free From Wind Storms.

From the statistics furnished for the years from 1878 to 1887 inclusive by the United States signal office at Olympia, the following summary is obtained: Mean height of barometer 30.09; highest barometer, 30.63; lowest, 29.16; range of barometer, 1.47. Mean annual temperature, 49.5; highest temperature in the ten years, 97 degrees, in 1886; lowest in the ten years, 2 degrees above zero, in 1884; annual range of temperature, 79.9; mean temperature for spring, 48.8; mean temperature for summer, 60.7; mean temperature for winter, 38; rainfall and melted snow, average total amount, 54.45; rainfall for spring, 12.01; rainfall for summer, 2.66; rainfall and melted snow for winter, 37.64; wind, mean direction, south; highest recorded hourly velocity, 32 miles; average velocity per hour, 3.65 miles; number of clear days, 73; number of fair days, 133; number of cloudy days, 159; number of days in which 0.01 inch or more of rain or snow fell, 151; number of days temperature rose above 90 degrees, average for ten years, 1 day; in 1879, 1881 and 1883 there were no days in which it reached that height; number of days in which temperature fell below 32 degrees, or freezing point, 3; mean relative humidity, 78 degrees.

It will be noticed by the reader that two degrees above zero is the coldest weather ever recorded here, and that on only one day in the year, on an average, has the thermometer risen above ninety degrees, while the mean annual temperature is a little less than fifty degrees dropping from an average of sixty degrees in summer to thirty-eight degrees in winter.

Attention is also called to the fact that the average velocity of the wind at Olympia is slightly less than four miles an hour, and that high winds, with their disagreeable accompaniment of dust and sand, are unknown here. In the months of January and February, when the legislature will be in session, Olympia has very mild weather compared to that experienced across the mountains, and the rainfall, which is pictured by rival candidates for the capital as being little less than a deluge, is in reality exceeded by a number of places in the Eastern and Central States, where no one ever thinks of raising an objection on that score. New Haven, Connecticut, has about the same average rainfall as Olympia; so have Charleston, South Carolina, and Chattanooga, Tennessee, as well as Wilmington, North Carolina. Mobile has a far greater rainfall. Jacksonville, Florida, has almost the same, Vicksburg has more, portions of California more and parts of New York as much, the fact being that the snow of colder climates turns into rain here, as in all warm countries.

THE QUESTION OF LOCATION.

The Claims of the Rival Candidates for the Capital Considered.

The claims of the two principal rivals, Olympia, Ellensburgh and North Yakima, are based almost exclusively on their central location. It might be answered to this to point out the fact that this is scarcely a state in the Union in which the question of central location has been considered in connection with the selection of a capital city. On the contrary, even in the new states, the capitals are generally located at one side or the other of the commonwealth, miles from the geographical center. Albany is near the eastern boundary of New York. This is also true of Boston, Mass.; St. Paul, Minn., and Topeka, Kan. Wheeling is near the northern boundary of West Virginia, Salem is as far west as Olympia, while Oregon extends as far east as Washington. Lincoln, Neb., which was especially chosen for a capital city, is located only a few miles from the Iowa line. It is evident that the plea of being centrally located is one which deserves but very little consideration in itself from the intelligent voter.

As a matter of fact, however, there is only a distance of twenty-three miles between Olympia and her two rivals, as regards the position of the three cities in their relation to the geographical center of the state, so that the advantage of location from this standpoint is absolutely nil. However, Olympia has exactly the same railroad facilities to-day that all her rivals can boast, and her prospects and possibilities are far better than theirs. Olympia in direct connection with the Northern Pacific railroad system, Olympia will shortly have a direct line from Portland and one to Gray's Harbor. This, with the completion of the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern, across the Puget Sound country and Cascade mountains, will make Olympia in very close communication with Northeastern Washington and the intervening country. It will be also the main line to the Gray's Harbor district. The road from Olympia to Kamilchie—less than twenty miles—will connect the capital city with the road now in course of construction from Kamilchie to Elma, and will be being rapidly extended to Montesano. Another railroad by the Cowlitz pass will cross the Cascades to North Yakima and the Okanogan country. A southern extension of this road will be extended to join with the Hunt system and the Walla Walla country.

More important than the geographical center in determining the question of capital location, however, is the center of population and wealth, and here Olympia far outdistances her rivals.

Take a circle, the center of which is Olympia and the radius 100 miles, and the population amounts in the aggregate to 116,631, while within a circle of 100 miles of Ellensburgh it amounts to 50,000, thus showing that Olympia is in the center of population more than four times as much as of Ellensburgh and North Yakima, and, too, the ratio of the assessable value of the property within the same radius is about the same, being a little more than four times as much within the circle of Olympia for its center as it is in the case with Ellensburgh or North Yakima for its center.

VOTE FOR OLYMPIA

Because she has the mildest climate.
Because she is the healthiest city.
Because she has an ample supply of pure water free from Alkali.
Because she has no high winds.
Because consequently, she has no dust.
Because she has the finest location of any candidate city.
Because she has the finest site for the Capitol building.
Because this site has already been donated for Capitol purposes.
Because she is nearer the center of population.

Because she has better transportation facilities than all of her rivals combined.
Because she is nearer the great cities than her rivals.
Because a vote for Olympia is a vote to save the state thousands of dollars.
Because a vote for Olympia is not a vote for any real estate boomer.
Because she has far superior hotel accommodations to all her rivals combined.
Because she can be reached at a less cost than any other rival city.

Because all who have ever visited her will vote for her.
Because she has the most beautiful scenery in the state.
Because her social and home life attractions unexcelled.
Because she already has all the buildings needed for public purposes.
Because this fact will save every taxpayer money.
And because for all these reasons a vote for Olympia is a vote to put money in your own pocket.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 25.

A TALE OF TWO STATES.

The census of Washington territory, just completed, shows remarkable increase of population. In 1880, by the census of the United States, the population of the territory was 75,116; in 1889, by the census taken by the county assessors, the population is ascertained to be 240,000. The increase in nine years is 165,000, more than one-half of which has been gained during the past two years.

This rapid rate of gain has not hitherto been equaled on the Pacific slope, except in California, and there only during short periods. There never has been any growth in Oregon like it—though the growth in Oregon is now more rapid than ever before.

We may estimate the present population of Oregon on the basis of the vote of last year and on the school census of the present one; and the result may be held to approximate very nearly to accuracy. The vote of Oregon in 1880 was 40,316, and the population that year as ascertained by the census of the United States, was 174,768. The total vote last November was 62,853, and upon the same proportion of voters to population that existed in 1880, the inhabitants of Oregon last November would have numbered 271,000. In 1880 there were 53,615 children of school age in Oregon; in 1889 the number was 93,798. The proportion, applied to population, would have made the total number of inhabitants in Oregon at the beginning of 1889 (the school census is always taken early in the year) about 280,000.

Last year the whole vote of Washington was 36,348. Upon the gain of population reported by the census, we shall look for a total vote next week of about 66,000. The Federal census to be taken next year will show a population in Washington of at least 230,000, and perhaps very nearly 300,000. The population of Oregon will not much exceed this last figure. Our state, indeed, is likely to have more population in 1890 than Washington, but not greatly more. Its excess will probably not be more than 25,000, as against nearly 100,000 in 1880.

The rapid growth of population in Washington has been due to the fact that there is a great deal of excellent country hitherto unoccupied; to the energy, spirit and activity of the people; to the efforts of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company to advertise the territory and bring settlers to it; to the heartiness with which the people have welcomed investments of capital, and to absence of restrictions upon such investments; to a fair and equal system of taxation, and to the enlightened refusal of the people to enact usury laws. In Washington there is free movement of money; loans are negotiated with out obstruction, and credits are not taxed, as in Oregon, four or five times as high as property in land and in other forms. The consequence of all this is that Washington is growing rapidly in population, industry and wealth. Its spirit of enterprise and liberality will soon make it a great state, and it will leave Oregon far behind if our people cannot be induced to exercise something like common sense in treatment of investments of capital for the development of the resources of their state. Under our system excessive burdens fall upon money and credits; our system of deducting indebtedness allows great part of the property of the state to escape taxation; capital, the life and soul of enterprise, is hampered and burdened in every way, and Oregon herself has sent millions of money to Washington for investment, in order to escape the unjust restrictions and burdens to which it is subjected at home. Oregon should be redeemed from her fossilized condition; she must be redeemed from it, or fall to a low rank among the competitors around her. She is making progress, indeed, but not the progress she ought. Money would pour in upon her for investment, as it pours in upon Washington, were the conditions as favorable; and with the investment of money would come increased activity in the development of the resources of the country, in the building of towns and cities, in the founding of industries, in the multiplication of values on the assessment rolls and of figures in the census table. The first necessary step to all this is reform of our fiscal system, so as to invite capital and not repel it. There is a widespread belief in Oregon that it is a good thing for the state to make investments of capital unprofitable, or at least to hold them under extremely rigorous restrictions. It would be as wise to try to promote health of the body by ligations to impede the circulation of the blood.

A PUBLIC NUISANCE AND A PIOUS FRAUD.

The Salvation Army has come to be regarded generally in all civilized communities as a public nuisance and a pious fraud. It is a kind of house of refuge for folk of both sexes who are promising candidates for the house of correction. When a bummer, who is too indolent to work for a living, cannot borrow and to beg is ashamed, he generally joins the Salvation Army; when a worthless woman becomes "dead broke," she joins the Salvation Army, and the rest of this braying band of tramps is composed of cranks or loose characters of both sexes, whose sincerity is perhaps assured because their sanity is doubtful. Out of this Salvation Army are periodically graduated murderers, thieves and adventurers, who, growing weary of their vagabond existence, return to a wider and less restricted field of depravity and hypocrisy than that afforded by their antic and fantastic asylum for the impecunious dissolute. These Salvation Army squads, wherever they go, violate that peace and order which is included in our pursuit of happiness, and, without regard to time or place, fill the public streets with their dissonance of barbaric music and the strident notes of their discordant voices. Their frightful noise collects idle crowds that obstruct the streets; causes "runaways," and disturbs busy men seeking in their offices to do business in quiet. When requested to shift their "army" to a spot where the sick will not be distracted by the blare of their horns and the ululation of their voices they always answer and behave with insolence and renew their noisy proceedings. There is no reason why these noisy creatures should be granted any special freedom to make life a daily burden to a decent people, and their defence that they have a right to sing and shout anywhere they please in the name of religion, without regard to the peace and order and comfort of the city, is absurd.

In the name of religion the "Adamites" of both sexes ran about Stark naked during the "middle ages;" lunatics raved in the streets, wearing a rope girdle and were canonized as saints. In Utah, in the name of religion, based on the example of the patriarchs, as set forth in the bible, the Mormons have instituted polygamy. But the nineteenth century is not the middle ages and Oregon is not Utah. If a man should persist in blowing a fishhorn under the windows of a hospital or a sick room; if he should sing and howl and dance in the public streets daily to the end of collecting a crowd or disturbing public peace and order, how long would he be exempt from arrest?

There is a practical way of suppressing this frightful public nuisance, which is held in restraint in all the great cities east of the Mississippi. Boston not only suppresses the Salvation Army and its mendicant minstrels, but it allows no street preaching on its Common by anybody, and arrests any preacher anywhere whose actions assemble a crowd large enough to obstruct business and the general comfort of the community. These Salvation Army vagabonds are reached at the East, we understand, through an ordinance which forbids all public playing and singing in the streets, except on permission of the authorities; and the authorities granting such permits within their discretion, distinguish between a lawless, disorderly, disturbing band of wandering tramps, afflicting the world with barbaric music in the stolen name of religion, and a band marching rapidly and decorously through the streets, at the head of a responsible and respectable civic procession.

Suppose that Chinatown should determine to organize a Chinese Salvation Army, and, arming it with weapons from the Mongolian musical arsenal, should plant it at the corners of our principal streets, how long would these noisy enthusiasts be exempt from arrest?

The fakirs that periodically afflict us are a nuisance, but they have to pay a license and appear only at considerable intervals of time, while we have the Salvation Army, like the poor, always with us. The city ordinances ought to be made so that neither the fakirs nor the Salvation Army shall be permitted to disturb and obstruct the public streets. On certain holidays larger liberty is granted and greater public turbulence is expected and endured from legitimate celebrants, but the rule for holidays is not the rule for every day life, and our city ought to silence the Salvation Army band of Bacchantes, Menads and Satyrs as well as the fakirs who are now licensed to trouble our streets.

A NOTED NOVELIST.

Wilkie Collins, who died in London on the 23d inst, was a prolific writer of fiction of such peculiar quality that he may be said to have founded a new school of novel writing, which reached a high order of excellence with himself and has had many imitators. The novels of Dickens are marked by a conspicuous absence of plot, while the surpassing merit of Collins was his wonderful skill in the construction of a plot, whose development invariably interested, and not seldom powerfully fascinated his reader. "The Woman in White," "The Moonstone," "Armadale" and "The Dead Secret," are brilliant examples of Collins's exceptional constructive talent; and his "Man and Wife" is a strong lay sermon against the vulgarizing effect of a passionate devot on to what is termed "muscular Christianity,"—that is the apotheosis of athletics to the point of neglect of or indifference to the cultivation of intellectual and spiritual force. Several of Collins's novels have been dramatized, and he was a collaborateur with Dickens, with whose family he was connected by marriage, in the production of "No Thoroughfare." Mr. Collins is justly entitled to a high place in the second rank of English fiction, which includes such writers as Anthony Trollope, William Black, R. D. Blackmore, Walter Besant, Mrs. Edwards and "Ouida;" and several of his novels possess so great original power in plot and portrayal of character that they will a ways have an army of intelligent readers. The character of "Count Fosco" in "The Woman in White" is a unique and original creation which stamps Mr. Collins as a man of exceptional literary talent and skill.

Our dispatches of Monday report that the emperor of China and his council are debating a memorial demanding the expulsion of Americans from China. This report confirms the prediction made in Chicago recently by the Rev. Charles H. Fowler, of San Francisco, a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, lately returned from a trip around the globe. Bishop Fowler, in speaking of the law prohibiting the Chinese from coming to America, said it was the most dastardly and disgusting thing that American ever did; "and," he said with a slow emphasis which was very impressive, "it will be paid for some day by the blood of some of America's best men." He thought every American should blush for shame when he thought of the violation of the treaty with China, whereby Chinese were not permitted to land on our shores. "China is not asleep," he said. "They talk little, but they think. The greatest prince in China said to me one day, 'We are looking after our home interests now. Ten years will put China in shape as to her interior arrangements; then we will look after her outside interests.' They are making great guns and iron clads, and are manning them. In ten years a country with one-third of the inhabitants of the globe will be ready to ask what we meant by trifling with her treaty."

Judge Tourjee, in the Chicago Inter Ocean, writing about Georgia, says: "In 1861 she pulled down the flag of the Union and ran up what was 'supposed to be the colonial flag of Georgia.' In 1889 her people pull down and hide away the flag of the Union on the Fourth of July, while the 'state flag of Georgia' flaunts gayly over the new capitol and the jubilant city where it stands. In 1861 the state demanded as one of the conditions on which it would condescend to remain in the Union 'the adoption of a constitutional amendment prohibiting for all time any colored man from holding office under the government of the United States.' In 1889 the elite of her capital city meet to burn in effigy a man who has appointed a colored man to office, and one of her citizens becomes the idol of the hour by resigning a place in the postoffice because his father 'used to own 200 negroes,' while he himself, as he boasts, had 'two to wait upon me at school!' 'Of course,' he adds, with naive sincerity, 'I can't work in an office with a negro!' A week later the lower house of her legislature, by a unanimous vote, proposes to canonize the military head of the Confederacy by making the birthday of Robert E. Lee a legal holiday."

It is said that since Johnstown is able to support fifty-one saloons it ought to be able to maintain its public schools. This does not follow. The class who support the saloons is, in the main, composed of men who have no interest in schools and have no property upon which a tax can be levied, and no means have as yet been devised to divert their wages from the saloon to the school fund. It may, indeed, be granted that a town that can support a multitude of saloons ought to be able to support its public schools unaided, but it is certain that this one is not, and the practical person can see no relevance between the two propositions.

Harlan county, Ky., is the scene of another feud of the regular Kentucky standard, which threatens to wipe out the contending factions. The section is an isolated one, there being no railroad within 100 miles of Harlan court house; the roads are trails, worn by the rains so that they are impassable except to trained mules and horses, and there is not a newspaper in the county. This gives the lawless element fine opportunity, which, it seems, it is not slow to improve. Seven men have been killed already in this neighborhood war, and it is likely to be waged until there is no more fighting material left on either side.

General Sheridan was among the eminent veterans who wanted to see a radical change in pension administration. He complained of the hold of the pension agents upon the bureau, by which men who served most of their time in the hospitals often get more than the boys who fought their way through the four years.

The death in an "opium joint," in Butte, of P. M. Matthews, a prominent railroad contractor, is recorded. He was "begu led," of course, though it is stated that he persuaded a Chinaman, the proprietor of the place, to take him in and give him a chance to "hit the pipe;" and being a novice at the business he found in the twelve pipes that he smoked for a beginning, his first and last experience in a "good time" of that sort. The Chinaman and his wife are very properly under arrest for murder. Such "celestials" should be removed from the path of prominent gentlemen, so that the most persistent search will not result in their beguilement.

Democratic orators in all parts of Washington are endeavoring to induce the people to vote against the constitution, substantially on the ground that it proposes to pay the governor and justices of the supreme court more than the wages of day laborers. The real reason of the opposition is that the democratic managers want to prevent the admission of a republican state.

Olympia's attractions are set forth in this issue of THE OREGONIAN. Those attractions are great. Her claim to be the possessor of all things that can be wanted at the capital city of the new state is not an extravagant one. It is not probable that the vote will show that she has any strong competition in the western division of the state; and we must wait for the vote to learn what place in the eastern division is to be the leading contestant with her.

Secretary Rusk believes that we shall yet make all our own sugar from sorghum. He says that sugar making from sorghum has already proved a success as far as the quality of the product is concerned. The problem now is to reduce the cost of manufacture just a trifle a pound, so that it may compete in price with other sugars.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

Arrive in New York to Take Part in the Conference of American Nations.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A distinguished lot of visitors to this country arrived at this port early this morning on the City of Para, being delegates to the coming international congress, from various Spanish-American countries. The delegates were Dr. Juanito Cartellano, delegate from Salvador, and Dr. Joaquan Aritto Rossi, attache, and Samuel Valdioso, secretary, Senor Juan Francisco Velarde, delegate from Bolivia, and Alcibiades Velarde and Mariano Velarde, attaches; Geronimo Zelaya, delegate from Honduras, and E. C. Faelier, secretary; ex-Minister Roberts, from Chili, and Julia M. Foster, of Santiago, Chili. In reference to the coming congress, Senor Zelaya, delegate from Honduras, said: "Our people are very enthusiastic over this international congress, and expect many advantageous results from it. We wish to develop our mining and agricultural interests, but our mines are what we want to see in operation as soon as possible. We need railroads and an enlargement of our commerce with foreign countries, especially the United States. All classes of our country desire closer relations with your people."

RECOVERED ALIVE.

One of the Quebec Victims Who had Been Buried 108 Hours.

QUEBEC, Sept. 24.—This morning the laborers at the ruins caused by the recent landslide, heard a slight moan under a heap of wreckage. Digging vigorously, they soon reached Jos. Kemp, who was extricated. Kemp, who is 72 years of age, was able to speak, after having been buried 108 hours. Stimulants were administered, and hopes are entertained that Kemp will recover.

Shortly after Kemp was taken out, the corpse of Mrs. O'Dowd, aged 72 years, was recovered. The body was badly mutilated. It is expected that more bodies will be found shortly.

The coroner's inquest into the cause of death of forty-eight victims opened this morning.

—AUCTION—

J. B. MILLER

October 3—129 First St.

To my many friends, customers and the public generally: I would respectfully announce my intention to close my entire stock of Watches, Diamonds, Jewelry, Silverware and Silver Plateware at public auction, after thirty years in the jewelry business in the city of Portland. Having to give up my present location, where I have been doing business for the past nineteen years, and it being impossible to get a suitable location in the city; I have concluded to sell my entire stock and show cases, and fix, present location and retire from business. My stock consists of the finest quality of Ladies' and Gents' Jewelry, Solid Gold and Silver Watches, Diamonds in endless variety. The finest brand of Solid Silver and Silver Plateware and everything pertaining to a first-class jewelry store. Sale will be positive and without limit, commencing Thursday, October 3, and will continue every morning, afternoon and evening until the entire stock is closed out.

Call early and secure bargains. No goods sold at private sale after the first of October. Ladies respectfully invited to attend each sale, for which seats will be provided.

Who Made a Mistake in the Front Street Survey?

Dr. C. E. Ebel's Condition Much Improved—Deputy Lockett Is Loaded—The Bureau of Information—Other Notes.

MADE A MISTAKE.—[illegible] contractors for the construction of the Johnson creek sewer, [illegible] joined by Captain Willard [illegible] United States engineers, from building the outlet of the sewer through his property. According to the first survey it was supposed that Front street ran into the river at the foot of William street. It appears, however, that there was some mistake in the survey, and Captain Young claims that Front street does not reach [illegible] at this point, and that he owns a portion of the street and the river at this point. It seems to be necessary that Front street should enter the river at this point, and right of way must be purchased from Captain Young, or in case an agreement as to price can not be reached, suit will have to be brought to condemn the property the same as for a railroad.

THE LOCKOUT.—It is stated by one of the members of the Bakers' Union that the differences between the union and Mr. Liebe, manager of the German Bakery, have been satisfactorily settled. The breach between the union and Mr. Liebe, who refused to accede to what he considered unreasonable demands, dates since June 1st. It was shortly after that the union men in the employ of the German Baking company struck. An agreement was reached on Monday night, when Mr. Liebe and the company appeared before the executive committee of the union. The union will take back some of the union men on [illegible] terms—weekly payments and [illegible] instance of eating and sleeping wherever [illegible] wish.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.—A mercantile directory of the state of California for 1889 has been issued by THE OREGONIAN from the press of the Mercantile Publishing Company of San Francisco. It contains lists of [illegible] banks, manufacturers, agents, lawyers, real estate dealers, banks, insurance companies, newspapers, colleges, and of every banking town in California. Mr. D. H. Tilton, representing the publishers of the directory here, states that the [illegible] force in this country preparing the directory for Oregon, Washington and Idaho will be incorporated with the [illegible] work, making it a mercantile directory of the Pacific coast. It will be issued January 1.

BLAST.—A large blast was fired at [illegible]'s quarry, near Washougal, a day or two ago, to throw down rock for the jetty [illegible] mouth of the Columbia. Two tunnels [illegible] into the rock a distance of seventy feet each, ran out at the end of each, [illegible] T. F. In these 1200 kegs of black powder were placed and the whole exploded [illegible]. The huge blast was a grand success, bringing down 50,000 tons of rock. There was much noise and none of the [illegible] hurt, but an old railroad man, [illegible] a great deal of blasting, said [illegible] of rock was moved that he ever saw.

NEW ATTRACTIONS.—Mr. William [illegible] C. H., has presented two [illegible] young bears to the City Park. [illegible] name having been captured [illegible], by Mr. Hume who is the [illegible] hunter of this section. He kept [illegible] weighed over 100 pounds each [illegible] them their liberty, but after [illegible] a time they came back home [illegible] thinner in flesh than when they [illegible] the great attractions at the [illegible] will enjoy themselves in the [illegible], climbing up the post in [illegible] eating the candy and peanuts [illegible] upon them by the admiring [illegible].

THE JOSS FESTIVAL.—The Chinese [illegible] yesterday getting ready the boxes of [illegible] they suspend in the Joss [illegible] under the awnings on Second [illegible] this season, in the celebration [illegible] Home festival which begins [illegible]. The artists will proceed to [illegible] Gog and Magog figures which [illegible] side of the Joss house door, [illegible] horse and the devil, so dear to [illegible] of the heathen, as usual [illegible] at the end of the celebration. [illegible] fair will have this, the finest [illegible] specimens of all the Chinese celebrations in as a sideshow free gratis [illegible].

NO OUTSIDE WIRE NEEDED.—Mr. Wilkes says the electric motor line to [illegible] and Woodstock is not to be run by [illegible] wire. He has studied out a [illegible] by the wire can be laid underground and kept perfectly insulated. He [illegible] around town yesterday with a [illegible] wire inside of three rubber [illegible] each other, but while he insisted that this was the style of wire he [illegible] to lay, he would not tell how he was [illegible] connection between it and the motor. [illegible] discovered a plan for so doing he [illegible] a private motor line from his [illegible] New York, and cash to spare.

FROM MOE: FIRE ALARM BOXES.—A new [illegible] box, "No. 48," was put up at the [illegible] of Tenth and J streets yesterday [illegible]. The alarm was found to work [illegible] only. A test was made by shutting [illegible] current from the large bell on [illegible] shed. This is the sixth of the [illegible] recently ordered by the fire [illegible]. Those yet remaining to be [illegible] box 14, at the corner of Fourth and [illegible], box 35, at the corner of West [illegible] and Yamhill streets; box 19, at the [illegible] of Front and Stark streets; and box [illegible] at the corner of Water and Harrison [illegible].

SPECIAL MEETING.—Special gospel meetings are to be held in the Baptist Mission [illegible], corner of Tenth and Adams street, [illegible] addition, beginning next Friday evening. This interest is under the charge of Rev. U. W. Hill city missionary of the First Baptist church of Portland, who will [illegible] the meeting, with the assistance of [illegible] and other Baptist pastors. The [illegible] meetings of late have been marked [illegible] increasing spiritual interest, and indications are hopeful for a general religious awakening in this part of the city.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION.—A bureau of information for assisting visitors to the fair, [illegible] to get accommodated at the hotels, [illegible] boarding houses, was opened at No. 46 [illegible] street, in the office of the Columbia Fire & Marine Insurance Company. [illegible] in charge of Dr. Marion Wilcox, and will be open from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M. All having rooms which they can spare during the fair will please leave a list of the same with Mr. Wilcox and persons desiring to secure lodgings will apply to him.

QUITTING THE BUSINESS.—King Lee & Co.'s [illegible] in ladies' underwear, etc., has increased to such an extent that the firm is compelled to give up their Chinese and Japanese goods business. As it don't pay to [illegible] the goods back to China, they will, beginning on Wednesday, October 26, close out everything in that line at cost, below cost, in fact, at any price. Anyone who wants Chinese curiosities at a nominal price will do well to call on King Lee & Co., 63 Morrison street.

SURVEYS OF INDIAN RESERVATIONS.—From Surveyor-General D. W. Taylor it is learned that Mr. ——— C. Walker, deputy surveyor, started yesterday from Forest Grove for the Grand Ronde reservation where he will engage in [illegible] for about two months in making surveys [illegible] allotments in several [illegible] to the Indians. Mr. J. A. McQuinn, deputy surveyor, will leave in a few days to survey the west boundary line of the Warm Springs Indian reservation, about thirty miles in length.

HOMEWARD BOUND.—Mr. John Kelly, commissioner from this state to the Paris Exposition, sailed from Liverpool for home on the 20th inst. He will probably arrive here in time to take in the Industrial fair exposition, and to learn that America and Oregon can make a fine display in every department of art, even if they made none worth mentioning at Paris.

THIS IS THE LAST DAY of the $7 photographs for $2.50 per dozen at Professor Eastman's gallery, on the corner of Eighteenth and H, opposite the Industrial Fair building. The professor is there in person.

IT BEAT OLD ILLINOIS.—Several stalks of corn, raised by Mr. Strong, of Lewis river, Wn., were displayed at Everding & Farrell's yesterday which would have done credit to Illinois. The stalks are about thirteen feet in hight, and are loaded with huge ears of corn, the lowest of which is over six feet from the ground. Mr. Strong should not fail to make an exhibit at the fair, and if he has any pumpkins of a size to match with the corn, he is quite certain to take a prize.

GIRLS TO THE FRONT.—The preliminary session of the medical department of the Willamette University opened with twenty-five students in attendance. The new class is composed of some very good material, according to the statement of one of the professors, and the female prospective medico is largely represented. The regular course opens October 7 with an enrollment of about fifty already assured.

WELL, MY DEAR BOY, the shops in Albina will soon hum with industrial life; also the first electric street car line will be completed, then you will wish that some good-sized man would appear and kick you out of the county for not buying one or more lots in Central Albina addition. See W. M. Killingsworth, 105 First street, before it is too late.

GOING TO NEW YORK.—Mrs. Dr. Z. B. Nichols, accompanied by her daughters Misses Minnie and Carrie, left for New York last night. They will be gone some time, and will visit Mr. Herbert Nichols at Amherst college, and Dr. Clarence Nichols, who is stopping in New York, and who will probably accompany them home.

A DISASTROUS SEASON.—Some 117 of the Chinamen sent up by Seid Beck last spring to work for the General Alaskan Company arrived at San Francisco a day or two since and are on their way to this city. The company had a disastrous season, having only packed 2000 cases of salmon, and will probably suffer a loss of $50,000.

HE'S A CONSTANT READER.—S. C. Beckwith, writing from New York under date of September 18 says: Mr. R. R. Parrish, of Independence, Or., was a visitor to this office to-day. He came in to get late news from home and says he is a constant reader of THE OREGONIAN and can't get along without it at home or abroad.

A GOOD ADVANCE.—The fifty feet fronting on Alder street, opposite the Holton house, bought some time since by R. M. Dement, was sold by him yesterday for $20,000. The lot was purchased by Mrs. A. M. Elkins for a non-resident party. It is evident that outsiders are beginning to realize the value of Portland property.

LEAVES FOR WASHINGTON.—Hon. Ben Simpson leaves this morning for Washington, with the report of the commission which negotiated with the Coeur d'Alene Indians for the sale of a portion of their reservation. After handing the report to the department at Washington, he will proceed to his home in Georgia.

A GREAT CONVENIENCE.—For the accomodation of their many patrons, Sichel & Meyer have opened a branch at the exposition building, where they will keep a full line of their well-known brands of cigars. Their "Alhambra" is a gem and should be visited by every smoker.

DR. WHEELER'S CONDITION.—The condition of D. C. H. Wheeler, who sustained severe injuries by being thrown from a buggy several days ago, is much improved. The bruises on the face are rapidly healing, and the fractured ends of the bones of the right arm are uniting nicely.

TAYLOR-STREET M. E. CHURCH SOCIAL.—Entertainment and social to be given by the young people this evening, September 25. Tableaux representing the nine muses of Grecian mythology, with musical and literary selections. Ice cream and cake to refresh you. Admission, 10c.

SOCIAL AND RECEPTION.—A reception to the delegates returning from the convention recently held at Vancouver, B. C., will be given at the Y. M. C. A. hall next Friday evening. All friends of the association are invited and a pleasant time is assured all who attend.

SOCIABLE.—The ladies of St. Paul's M. E. church will give a social this (Wednesday) evening at the residence of Mrs. T. A. Wood, No. 455 West Park street. A cordial invitation is extended to all the friends. An enjoyable reunion is expected.

STEADILY IMPROVING.—Judge Deady's health is steadily improving, and he is considered out of danger. It is not known when he will be strong enough to venture abroad, but it is hoped that he will be able to go out in a week or so.

CLOAK SALE.—During the sale of Springer Brothers cloaks and wraps, we would ask the ladies to call in the forenoon and avoid the crowd and rush of the afternoon. McAllen & McDonell, 161 and 163 Third street, corner Morrison.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY.—There will be a meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church, Wednesday, at 2 P. M. A large attendance is desired to consider important business.

A German Named J. H. Hoffman Arrested for Passing Forged Checks.

Saloon-Keepers Are His Victims—Wanted on Similar Charges at Oregon City—He Declares His Innocence.

Officer Foss yesterday afternoon arrested a German named J. H. Hoffman on a charge of obtaining money on forged papers. It appears that this man has a weakness for manufacturing his own checks when hard pressed for money.

Soon after Hoffman's arrest several saloonkeepers made their appearance to swear out complaints against him for victimizing them with worthless checks. Hoffman hypothecated a check for $17 to Harry Kinney, a saloonkeeper on Third and E streets, a check for the same amount to W. H. Lawther, of the Red Front saloon, and a check for $11 to another saloonkeeper on Third street.

One of the checks (on the First National bank) is made payable to John Harter, and bears the signature of W. E. Lovenstein.

Hoffman is no novice at the business. A warrant sworn out in Justice Phelan's court has been in the hands of a constable nearly three weeks. It is stated that he is also wanted at Oregon City on similar charges. If half of the charges against Hoffman are proved true, his chances for a long term in the "pen" are exceedingly bright.

The imprisoned forger was seen by a reporter through the small aperture in the door of the main corridor of the city jail yesterday evening. He was very reticent, and preferred to remain silent rather than give his version of the alleged forgeries. "I think I have nothing to say," said he. "I do not know the men who charge me with giving them forged checks. I never had any such papers, which I will be able to prove."

"No, my home is not in Portland," replied he in response to another question. "It looks like a put up job on me."

It is true that no forged checks were found on Hoffman's person, but a large package of blank checks on all the different banks in the city were found in his possession. What point he means to gain by his story of innocence in the face of all this evidence, which, though circumstantial, is alone almost sufficient to convict him, is difficult to conjecture.

In appearance Hoffman resembles a shrewd sport. There is a look of cunning in his dark blue eyes that at once arouses suspicion. He is about 40 years age, below the medium hight and has a sandy mustache and hair of the same color.

[illegible]

[illegible] 5 LOTS, TEN DOLLARS EACH; [illegible] $5 TO $25.

The latter are the choicest corners and nearer the town The lower prices are rear lots in the addition. The ots are 40x110 feet. The ground is level, yet 25 feet higher than the city, just enough to give the finest view of the town the valley and the mountains. The land is free from s one or rock piles. In short, it is as fine a piece of land as there is in La Grande. The soil is first class, good for gardens and fruits The land has been used for both meadow and grain Terms of sale, one half cash, one-half at 6 months, bond for deed, or 5 per cent off for cash. This addition is four blocks from the town hall and postoffice, one block from public school two blocks from university building and one third of a mile from O. R & N. depot La Grande is growing fast These lots are positively a real bargain and a sure and safe investment. Building is all going toward this addition. All the nice residences are in the direction of this property. A fine home is now building within one block of it Also, remember that every unsold lot in the addition on the night of October 5, will be advanced in price from 10 to 25 per cent, and in 90 days they will go up 50 per cent from present prices. They are worth it If you want one or more lots be sure to send your money and order by the train on October 4, or go to Wisdom's drug store, make selections, less the first two are taken before your order in, that is if you wait to the last moment to buy You can deposit your money with M. B. Wisdom at drug store, or can send to J K. Romig, La Grande, Oregon, or if you send your order and draft to the La Grande National Bonds or deeds will be turned over to them, or the bank select lots. Depend upon one thing, viz. you are dealing responsible men, and if you buy you will thank the that prompted you to buy.

INSANE AND UNREASONING FURY

The possibility—ever a grim attendant upon mob law—that a more serious crime than that which the mob, in the heat of passion, seeks to avenge, may be committed by refusing to await the deliberate action of the courts in dealing with supposed criminals, was forcibly illustrated in a Kansas town a few days ago in the repeated hanging until life was nearly extinct, of a man and woman for the supposed murder of a little child that had been committed to their care for a few hours The woman, a nervous creature, completely terrorized by the awful fate that was impending over her, 'confessed,' in the wild hope of thus saving her life to having committed the deed, her husband, though subjected to like barbaric treatment, steadily refused to confess to a crime that he did not commit, and it was only after the child was found, alive and well, that the infuriated mob released the wretched pair who had so nearly been the victims of lawless and almost insane passion.

The statement is an almost incredible one and would be entirely so but for the well known fact that the term 'mob' is usually but a convenient appellation for an aggregation of lolly of the frenzied type, that is the product of a sudden fury which for the time knows neither reason or tolerance There seems to have been in this instance no reason, beyond the common circumstance that a little child had wandered away from its temporary custodians and in common parlance was "lost" to instigate the violence that nearly resulted in the death of a man and woman, whose only fault in connection with the absence of the little one was that they had not watched over it as carefully as they should have done, and did not exhibit a proper degree of anxiety as to what had become of it. For this remissness each was hanged thrice until nearly dead, and but for the interference of the father of the child the monstrous iniquity of lynching them would have been completed

The lesson furnished by this example of mob fury is one that should make strong appeal to every citizen to uphold the deliberate action of the courts in matters involving life Sudden rage so subordinates the human judgment to its will that it becomes unfit to pass upon the criminal whose act has aroused it, even if his guilt is beyond all question, and when the crime is mere y alleged and the proof is wholly wanting there is every probability of making a fatal mistake that would equal in gross brutality, and outrank in infamy, a murder deliberately planned The courts, in their seeming apathy in the matter of inflicting punishment are frequently and not unjustly censured as answerable for lawlessness of this character Almost every community has had examples of this kind, that have kindled the mob spirit to a more or less dangerous heat. But while many good citizens have been made to feel that the road to penalty is often unreasonably obstructed and he progress which is made upon it is unnecessarily slow, the deliberate judgment of all is in full accord with the feeling that, by and the methods prescribed by law, there is no safety to the individual and that society offers whenever mob fury overrides the barriers of law and order and takes upon itself the awful responsibility of administering penalty

THREE JEWISH HOLIDAYS

No race is so widely scattered over the face of the earth as the Jews Siberia and Patagonia alike claim the tribute of their citizenship but without regard to locality condition or environment to-night they will assemble by tens, by hundreds and by thousands, as they have done for ages, to commemorate the feast of trumpets the Rosh Hashannah the head of the year, the beginning of the civil and religious year of the Hebrews

According to biblical authority the occasion was first legalized in the first verse of chapter twenty nine in the book of Numbers "And in the seventh month (Tishri or Ethre) on the first day of the month, ye shall have a holy convocation, ye shall do no servile work it is a day of blowing the trumpets unto you Talmudic and biblical scholars have assigned various reasons for this great semi religious and political celebration Some claim that it was in commemoration of the birthday of the world The ancient rabbis thought it was a day on which all human creatures passed before the eternal to be judged but Maimonides the great Jewish philosopher and author considered that the purpose of the festival was to awaken the Hebrews from their religious indifference and to arouse them to make preparation for the Yom Ha Kepporim or day of atonement, which come upon the people after the ten penitential days Philo and some of the earlier Christian writers regarded the Rosh Hashannah as in commemoration of the law given to Moses on the mount When the Jews had become a powerful nation with the central government at Jerusalem this celebration became a great agricultural feast and drew vast crowds of people from every part of Judea so that the ceremonies in the temple were most grand and impressive just the thing calculated to inspire with awe a people possessing the characteristics of the Jews Two Psalms the eighty first and one hundred and fiftieth seem to have been especially composed for this feast and in spite of the fact that modern criticism shows beyond a doubt that King David was not the author of the entire book these two efforts are songs of great rythmic beauty and poetic fervor

The ten days that must elapse between the New Year and that of atonement are spent by conforming Jews in self-examination and preparation for this 'The holy Sabbath of Sabbaths" Leviticus xvi 29 says And this shall be a statute forever unto you, that in the seventh month, and on the tenth day of the month, ye shall afflict your souls and do no work at all whether it be one of your own country or a stranger that sojourneth among you" This is the day of national humiliation The great democracy of the wilderness sought to expiate offenses against the law. No man, above the age of thirteen from the priest in the temple to the artisan was exempt from the command From the forty years' wandering of the Jews that elapsed between the exodus from Egypt and the entrance into Canaan, to this day, all pious Jews have sacredly observed the day of atonement, and no food is tasted or water allowed to pass the lips for four and twenty hours, from the setting sun on the ninth of Tishri to the outcoming of the evening star upon the tenth The rough idea that physical hardship would purge from sin has gradually developed until the spiritual conception that prevails among intelligent Israelites that it is good for man to put control upon his passions and common needs to show the superiority of mind over matter

Five days later the rigid solemnity of the season is broken by the celebration of the joyous feast of Succoth or Tabernacles This commemorates the historical period of tent-dwelling by the Jews in the wilderness This is the most beautiful celebrat on among the Hebrews The customs and ceremonies that clustered about this feast have provided abundant subjects for the poetry and songs of the cultured Spanish Jews whose literature was so fruitful before the Inquisition and the expulsion of the race from Spain Among the frooms or pious some of the beauties of the occasion are still preserved In a booth festooned with flowers and evergreen, cedar and leaf the parents and children assemble rejoicing in the abundance of fruit and cake and wine History is recalled, poetic prayers recited, and songs chanted especial to the occasion All writers attribute the great influence of Judaism upon so many generations to the fact that it is a religion of the family and hearthstone But these customs are losing their hold upon the race Outside pressure removed the Hebrew finds no controlling incentive to cling to that exclusiveness the only relief of which in the past lay in the consolations afforded by religion It has been the wonder of many that 2000 years of persecution have not been able to crush out the distinctiveness of the Jews The reason is plain to those who look beneath the surface The Jew possesses the faculty to rise out of himself shake off the taint of his degradation wherever his confidence is insulted by civil liberty and political security The masses of intelligent American Jews are first Americans then Jews They have abandoned the hope of establishing a royal kingdom a separate nationality Jewish bravery has been illustrated anon ever battlefield of this century and intimate association with their fellow men is held by vast numbers of Jews to be the highest dictate of a religion that drew its origin of purity amid the shattered idols of Asia

SCOUT EDITOR AND PHILOSOPHER

Colonel J W Redington has converted the humorous original and successful Puyallup Commerce into a daily The initial number contains the following observations

One of the chief aims in the brief and fitful life of this Daily Puyallup Commerce will be to forever settle the long standing dispute between the two great political parties of the country This is a special branch of industry that has been altogether too long neglected

As stout a man as J M Murphy who is running for auditor on the democratic ticket ought to be able to hold himself up on part of his name But o It must be spelled away out—John M Irace Murphy We cannot conscientiously endorse John while he uses any such four inch line

Puyallup pioneers thirty years ago did not see as many railroad trains flashing through the Puyallup valley as they do to-day Now the town of Puyallup can claim to be quite a railroad center and has quite common to see seventy five or one hundred freight cars strung along the tracks here loading and unloading

Petitions to bounce one marshal and appoint another are a howling nuisance When a change is made it is hardly forty eight hours before some one is circulating a petition to appoint another man and the next new man has hardly time to get the run of the roads before some one wants to bounce him It must be a delightful position and must be a delight ful quiet one that who could suit one half the taxpayers and one-sixteenth the non taxpayers Humanity needs but improvement all around

The Ledger is down on Governor Semple because he refused to allow dust and dandruff to settle on his coat collar while he was running his sawmill We cannot condemn or endorse any such charges on the part of our esteemed contemporary So it falls harmless The republican party recognizes a man's right to wear just all over his clothes if it suits his sweet will so long as he does not shoot the dust into his neighbors. Governor Berry sometimes wears crumpled hair, but that is because there is nothing so many thoughts under his hair Both governors are good enough men to tolerate, but Berry is the biggest man mentally Vote for Berry for governor

THE SALVATIONISTS' CASES.

S Tomlinson Proves To Be a Very Poor Horse Trader

He Disposes of Poor Animals and Has to Refund the Purchase Money — Two More Divorces—Other Notes

The petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the cases of Walter Hayes and Millard Rambo the members of the Salvation Army arrested in East Portland for violating an ordinance of that city providing that no bands should play on the streets without a special permit, was argued before Judge Shattuck yesterday morning by Hon George H Williams, attorney for the defendants, and Messrs Beach and Sears representing East Portland Judge Shattuck will either deny or allow a writ at 9 30 o'clock this morning

TWO MORE DIVORCE SUITS

Mrs Nicoline Bodill Kuhnlein commenced suit for a divorce in the Circuit court against Alexander Kuhnlein to whom she was united in marriage in Chicago Illinois October 14, 1876 The plaintiff in her complaint says that within two weeks after the marriage her husband violently assaulted her and has continued to do so almost continually ever since The plaintiff continues that when she married Kuhnlein he was not worth a dollar, but she had almost $10 000 worth of property, devised to her by a former husband At the time of her marriage to Kuhnlein she was keeping a boarding and lodging house, and he was a boarder in her establishment pay ing nothing for his bed and board, but on the other hand he appropriated to his own use the income of her property to two years which aggregates $1800 She further claims that her husband has $8 000 additional money belonging to her Plaintiff has no means and relies besides decree of divorce such other relief as the court may deem fit and just

HE'LL TRAVEL INSTEAD OF PROSECUTE

Not long since W Darrow leader of the military band stationed at Vancouver barracks purchased a horse from S Tomlinson for his wife who is an expert horsewoman for $99 The understanding was that in the event the animal did not prove as represented Tomlinson would refund the money The horse was hitched to a cart and Mrs Darrow drove a short distance when the creature stalled and kicked smashing the cart and almost killing the lady

Mr Darrow took the animal back to the seller and asked that the purchase money be refunded Tomlinson however induced Darrow to try another horse stipulating that in case the animal was not returned within an hour the money would not be refunded under any consideration The second horse proved as unmanageable as the first and in less than two hours the two were brought back to Tomlinson who refused to refund over the purchase money, claiming that Darrow kept the horse an hour longer than the agreement would permit

The victim of the wily horse dealer brought action in Justice Lutz's court for the recovery of his money and yesterday morning was awarded judgment

POLICE COURT

In the police court yesterday the following assignations were made of the cases on the docket

Thomas Conner Ned Fowler, M Tenby Parker and Al Kenney victims of injudicious drinking of subtle but potent beverages were taxed the usual $5 each

J C Rands charged with trespass by sleeping in Smith Bros lumber yard James Heler sleeping in a box car of the Southern Pacific Railway Company and William Smith, sleeping in a box car of the Portland & Willamette Valley Railway Company were fined $10 each

The case against James Carr charged with using abusive language to Lizzie Akin was continued until this afternoon

Another application for a continuance in the case of Jack Green charged with gambling was granted the city attorney It appears that one of the city's most important witnesses can not be found and the information is made that he has conveniently made himself scarce through the connivance of parties interested in the defense The case however will be disposed of this afternoon Young Dudley Ervine has again succeeded in getting himself into the toils of the law Yesterday he appeared in court on a charge of roaming the streets after 9 o'clock in the evening without the consent of his parents and Judge Tanner sentenced him to forty days solitary confinement in the wards of the Boys and Girls Aid Society The officers who testified in the case say that the young man is rapidly falling into the ways of the wicked

THE CORPORATION'S FIRST ASK

Mrs R Jane Williamson secretary of the home for Chinese Women and Girls applied for a writ of arrest under the law passed by the last legislature, in department No 1 of the circuit court, in the case of Sing Yee mother of a three weeks' old girl baby to compel the woman to give the child into the corporations custody

The petition alleges that the woman Sing Yee is about to sell her child to persons who will bring it up to lead a life of prostitution

BEECHER ON ADVERTISING DOCTORS.

I am glad that the doctor put it into the paper that he could cure him And if any doctor is certain he can cure such diseases and don't put it into the paper I am sorry What a pity it would have been had this doctor come to town with his wealth of science and experience and gone away leaving him uncured! What a pity it would have been if he had been so prejudiced against advertising as to read the report of secret certificates of the doctor and go by a quack! Without newspapers for it not to circulate information What more valuable information can a newspaper give than to tell a sick man where he can be cured? If a man has devoted his life and labor to the study of a special class of diseases the necessity of saying so becomes all the more pressing His duty to advertise becomes imperious A reader of human nature by passing his name agreement the life of his fellows those ailments through want of advertising.

The above extract from an able article by the late Mr Beecher embodies a good deal of the subject of advertising Suppose Dr Darrin should come to the town and not advertised who would know of his presence Who would know of the following truly miraculous cures he performed in 1888 had not Mr Dibble put it in the paper?

In Addition In 1887 my daughter was taken with the membranous croup and upon her recovery was left totally deaf I called on two eminent physicians who said there could do nothing for her At last I resolved to consult Dr Darrin whose name and who has never been outdone with deafness since I consider one of the greatest curses of Let me assume treatment on record and with great satisfaction give this to mankind Dresden Brooks Co ormand will take great pleasure in answering any inquiry concerning this most remarkable cure Yours respectfully

AFFAIRS ON THE EAST SIDE.

A Man Arrested While Endeavoring to Commit a Theft.

The Tracks at Work—All Quiet—Jackscrews Needed—Curve Removed—New Bridge Notice—Various Notes.

Officer Afterbury arrested a fellow named [illegible] Monday, charged with entering a room in the Standard box factory. He was arraigned before the recorder yesterday afternoon. It was shown that he entered the room and was found in it rummaging around in the clothing that was hanging on the wall. He attempted to explain his presence in the room by giving the ridiculous excuse that he was looking for matches. Deputy Attorney Hall questioned the prisoner closely, and soon had him in a very confused state of mind. The evidence against him was strong, and he was bound over to answer before the grand jury in the sum of $200, which he failed to furnish, and was committed to the county jail. He had in his person at the time of his arrest $84 and a watch and chain, which is quite a sum for a man thief to have on hand.

SOME JACKSCREWS NEEDED.

Fifty-street bridge across Sullivan's gulch was under discussion again in the council. It was stated that the railroad company had tendered that bridge in a very short time—[illegible]—but the railroad company has a few more—but the railroad company has no [illegible] on hand to do this, and the [illegible] Murphy said some competent [illegible] should be consulted. It was [illegible] understanding that the street committee consult with competent an[illegible] it was invested with power to [illegible] view of the fact that the bridge will [illegible] to settle after it is leveled up, it [illegible] a good idea for the city to purchase [illegible] jackscrews and keep them on [illegible] the bridge may be kept on a level [illegible] necessary to assess the damages, [illegible] that work will soon commence [illegible] construction of this bridge. The [illegible] reported Monday night that the [illegible] Land Company, that will [illegible] bridge, is impatient to have all the [illegible] legal steps taken at once.

ALL IS QUIET.

When Judge Williams came to the city [illegible] took charge of the cases of the arrested anarchists, he advised them to keep [illegible] streets until the matter is finally [illegible]. They have done so for the past few evenings, and the city has been unusually quiet. The two Socialists, Hayes and Hamblo, remained in the city hall until [illegible] evening, when they were bailed out by [illegible] Stott.

GOOD WORK.

Yesterday afternoon the city marshal had [illegible] confined in the city jail at work [illegible] out the gutter leading from the Harrington block, along H to Second street. This has been needed for some time, as the gutter was completely stopped up, and impure water had become stagnant in it.

PAQUET'S CURVE REMOVED.

When the Hawthorne avenue railroad was [illegible] that portion in front of Paquet's property was put on the opposite side, and [illegible] becoming known as "Paquet's curve." Yesterday this curve was taken out and the track put on a straight line.

MISCELLANEOUS.

D. W. W. Royal has returned from his Eastern trip.

Wanted a girl to take care of children and assist in housework at 464 L street.

Some needed repairs have been made to the sidewalk on Fifth street by the street repair force.

The Salvation army case was argued before Judge Shattuck yesterday, and the decision will be announced to-day at 9:30 A. M.

The regular monthly members' meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Wednesday evening September 25. A full [illegible] is desired. An interesting program is being prepared.

There have already been three council meetings this month, and next Monday another meeting will be held, which is the greatest number of meetings any one remembers having been held in one month.

A "CHEERFUL" BEGGAR.

A Clackamas Farmer, With Land Valued at $4180, Seeking Charity.

The office of the City Board of Charities is overrun with applicants for work, money and clothing. All who apply, however, are not worthy objects of charity, and many are impostors and plain, every day tramps.

An exemplification of this fact is found in a man who recently came from the country near Oregon City. He walked all the way to Portland, reciting a sad tale of losses by fire and total destitution, and asked the good people along the route of his journey to do what they could for him in the line of pecuniary assistance. By the time he reached the city he had about $85. Of course, he went to the C. B. of C., thinking that this institution would at least give him a similar sum.

"How much do you want?" was asked him.

He modestly replied, "I want all I can get."

"Well, then, how much do you need?" again asked the clerk.

With a long drawn sigh, he answered "I need legs."

Further questioning elicited the fact that he owns 160 acres of land, valued at $26 an acre, in Clackamas county, and a yoke of oxen. With all of this property this healthy, able-bodied man, with no family to support, considered himself a fit object of public charity. This is only one case, among many cases of a similar nature, that come to the notice of the board.

While there are many of this class, who have so efficacy in throwing themselves upon the generosity of the public, there are, no doubt, many more, who, though far more deserving, either through pride or modesty, struggle along through life without even acquainting the public with their destitute circumstances.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE,

The Plan of the Work for the Series of 1889-90.

From Professor R. R. Lake in charge of the department of botany and horticulture, Agricultural college, Corvallis, it is learned that the following six institutes will be held under the auspices of the State Agricultural College during the coming winter season. The college will be represented at each institute by at least two members of the faculty. The management of these institutes lies largely with the experiment station council, and it is hoped that this series may prove even more interesting than did the series last year. The following places and dates are set. Slight changes may be made if better dates can be given by the localities interested.

The names accompanying the places and dates are those of members of the college faculty who will present addresses.

Oregon City, October 10 and 11, Professors Grimm, Bristow and French.

Ashland, October 25 and 26, President Arnold, Professors Grimm and Washburn.

Pendleton, November 14 and 15, Professors Grimm and Lake.

Eugene, January 9 and 10, President Arnold, Professors Letcher and Irish.

Albany, February 13 and 14, President Arnold, Professors Coville and Snell.

Independence, March 13 and 14, Professors Grimm, Hull and Berchtold.

A BADLY DISGUSTED THIEF.

He Stole a Cash Register, Smashed It to Pieces, and Then Got Only $2 35.

Any one having a desire to inspect all the internal arrangements of a cash registering machine can have their curiosity gratified by calling at W. W. Spaulding's butcher shop.

When the place was opened yesterday morning the register was missing, and it was shortly after found in a vacant lot back of Magoon's stables in a teetotally wrecked and ruined condition.

The thief who carried it off and went to the trouble of breaking it up secured $2 35 for his trouble. He did not know much about cash registers, and when he reads this paragraph will probably be disgusted to learn that if he had had sense enough to have pressed upon any one of some thirty levers, the drawer would have opened and he could have secured the money without trouble and saved Mr. Spaulding the $200 which he paid for the register. The machinery of the register as gathered up filled quite a large box, and it looked as if there were enough of wheels, springs, levers, shafts, pulleys and ratchets to make up a vacuum motor, a threshing machine and a chess playing automaton.

Judging from the broken woodwork where the chisels or bars were inserted to break up the register, the thief earned the $2 35 he secured. For the future guidance of this thief and others of the same kidney, it may be stated that people do not use their cash registers for safes, and that there is not likely to be much money found in them at night; and, further, that it is safer and easier to open the register in the regular way, and there is no sense in smashing one to pieces. Persons owning cash registers will do well to leave them open at night to save thieves trouble.

EX-GOVERNOR WOODS' ILLNESS.

He Was Attacked With Congestion While Taking a Drive Yesterday.

Ex-Governor George L. Woods has not been in good health lately, and yesterday being bright and warm, he took a drive, thinking he would be benefited by the sunshine. While passing Eleventh and Main streets at noon he was taken with congestion and left the buggy. He was very weak, but was able to attract the attention of a gentleman on the opposite side of the street, who assisted him to the residence of Mrs. J. S. Raleigh, at No. 216 Eleventh street, where he was very kindly cared for. He was given hot drinks and in three hours was strong enough to be taken to his room in the Gilman house. He was resting easy last night.

BLUE MOUNTAIN UNIVERSITY.

A large brick building owned by the above institution at LaGrande, Oregon, will probably pass into the hands of the Willamette university, the latter establishing a branch at LaGrande. Negotiations have been pending to effect this transfer, which undoubtedly will be consummated in a few days, when a full corps of instructors will be announced. This university is within two blocks of Wisdom's addition. The lots in this plat have been placed at very low figures, chiefly to advertise LaGrande. They are selling, too, and buyers are from all parts of the Northwest. If you want some of this property, do not delay. Plats will be open to sale October 5. Prices from $65 to $125, half note at six months, half cash, or 5 per cent off for cash. Address J. K. Romig, La Grande, Oregon.

PERSONAL.

Hon. W. T. Burney, of the Oregon City land office leaves over the Northern this morning to accompany his father-in-law, the Hon. Ben Simpson as far east as Spokane Falls. During his absence Mr. Burney will visit both Spokane and the Coeur d'Alenes.

Professor Alfred Singer, a noted San Francisco vocalist, organist and pianist will sing the recit and aria, "Lord God of Abraham," from Mendelssohn's great oratorio "Elijah," at the synagogue, on the Hebrew New Year, which falls on the 26th instant. The professor possesses a rich baritone, powerful and sympathetic, admirably suited for oratorio work.

BUSINESS ITEMS.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa. Price 25 cts. a bottle.

Kidd's Cough Syrup costs a quarter. Will cure coughs, colds and sore throat.

EAGLE ROCK.

The Rising City of East Snake River Valley and the Future Great Farming, Manufacturing and Railroad Center of Idaho—Immense Agricultural Resources and Magnificent Water Power.

The city of Eagle Rock is located on the Utah & Northern, a branch of the Union Pacific rail road, and is situated about midway between Ogden, Utah and Butte City, Montana, in the center of East Snake River Valley. It is a young town of 1500 inhabitants and is the point of export and import for the greatest agricultural belt west of the Mississippi.

East Snake River Valley contains several thousand acres of fertile agricultural lands. It is only about five years since farming was commenced in this section, but no portion of the United States has been so rapidly settled and so well improved in the same length of time. Irrigation is necessary for all these lands, but they are mostly level and can easily be watered by canals from Snake river and from minor streams. Quite a number of irrigate canals are now in operation and others are under construction. The volume of water in Snake river is estimated to be equal to that of the Ganges, the great river of India, and its waters are amply sufficient to irrigate the entire valley.

The agricultural crops produced in this valley are immense. Wheat yields on the average forty bushels per acre. The corn crop is not surpassed anywhere. Clover, timothy, blue grass, lucerne or alfalfa, and the natural or blue stem grass are all very successfully raised, and the yield exceeds that of the Eastern and Middle states. This valley challenges the world on potatoes and vegetables, and large and small fruits are raised equal to those of California and Utah. Markets for all the hay, vegetables, grain and fruits that may be produced in this valley, are furnished by the great mining camps of Montana, to-wit: Butte City, Anaconda, etc. Thence there is good outlet to Portland, San Francisco, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago.

The climate during eight months of the year can be beat in no country and the winters are not nearly so severe as in Kansas or Missouri. The altitude is 4700 feet above the sea level. The atmosphere is pure, dry and invigorating. The water is clear and cold.

Immigration is heading in this direction. The advantage of possessing a home in this favored region, where crops are always sure, and where there are no blizzards by reason of drouth, nor because of too much rain, have recently attracted considerable immigration to this valley. During the past six months not less than 500 immigrant wagons passed through Eagle Rock. Most of these immigrants settled in this valley and neighborhood, and more colonies are coming. Farms near Eagle Rock are steadily increasing in value.

The water power at the town of Eagle Rock is not surpassed even by the world-famed water power at Minneapolis, Minn. Here the water in Snake river passes into a narrow channel and forms a rapids, thus giving facilities for operating many manufacturing establishments. First-class sawmill refer ing mill has just been erected, and the existence of this splendid water power only requires to be more widely known when other mills and factories will follow.

Railroads are reaching out for Eagle Rock. There is now extending through this valley the Utah & Northern railway, forming close connections with the Union Pacific and Northern Pacific railways, and the prospects are very favorable for the work on the Yellowstone National Park branch of the Union Pacific railway to commence at once. It is a settled matter that this road is to be built from Eagle Rock very shortly. After several surveys and reports had been made by Union Pacific engineers and forwarded to headquarters, the survey from Eagle Rock was accepted. It will only require about sixty-five miles of road, and will be comparatively easy work. This road from Eagle Rock to the National park will pass through the finest agricultural lands of Idaho to the greatest and grandest summer resort in the world—to the most magnificent scenery, the greatest curiosities and the most wonderful views in nature. The Chicago & Northwestern railway has a line proposed passing through this valley from east to west, it being the extension of the main line of that road. That this line will shortly pass through Eagle Rock is every reason to believe. Surveys by several other railroad companies have recently been made in this vicinity.

The outlook for Eagle Rock is not excelled by that of any other point in America. Situated as it is, in the center of this rich and fertile valley, surrounded by all the natural advantages possible for any town to have, and destined from its location to become a railroad center of the greatest importance, only there be a question as to what its future will be? Old-time speculators say that the present prospects of Eagle Rock are better than those of Kansas City in '57 or that of Denver in '59. Los Angeles, Spokane Falls and Spokane Falls are recent examples of phenomenal growth—cities where investments made in due season have brought bonanzas to the fortunate investors. It is predicted that Eagle Rock is next on the list for a big boom, and that the Union Pacific branch railroad about to be constructed from Eagle Rock to the National Park will be the harbinger of palmy days for Eagle Rock, when, it is believed, the town will go forward by leaps and bounds until it ranks as one of the great cities of America. Here may be another chance for those who missed their opportunities in bygone days. At present Eagle Rock real estate is conveniently low. City lots may be had now in good locations from $40 up. At all figures it would seem quite impossible for buyers to lose anything, while on the other hand, they are liable to realize handsomely thereon in the near future. In this connection it may be mentioned that the leading real estate and investment agents at Eagle Rock are Lindsay & Lindsay and Harvey L. Rogers, who are members in good standing of the American Real Estate Association and by the local banks as being thoroughly reliable, and who will be pleased to answer all inquiries regarding city property and farming land in this section of country.

In connection with the above article we give the following extract from the Salt Lake Herald of 15th inst.

TO THE NATIONAL PARK.

A dispatch from Omaha says: "When the advancing season opens next year it will find the Union Pacific with a line terminating on the west limits of the Yellowstone National park. Ever since the park was established by the government the Northern Pacific has had a monopoly of the tourist business, figuratively speaking, for the reason that it has a line terminating within eight miles of the park. Three different times the Union Pacific made a survey from Beaver canyon to the park, but with that the matter rested. Chief Engineer Morris has completed a survey leading from Eagle Rock, a town sixty-nine miles south of the Beaver canyon survey, and from which a road to the park can be constructed with but little filling or grading and no tunneling. It will only require about sixty-five miles of road. The latter survey has been accepted and the road will be pushed to completion at once. The Union Pacific has practically arranged for the running of a fully equipped stage line from the terminus of the road to the park and to all points of interest."

NOT INTOXICATED.

Several nights since a drunken man entered a bedroom in a First street lodging house through the transom and nearly scared the life out of the woman who occupied it. The woman, who happened to be Maud Stanley, one of the Stanley sisters, naturally screamed and cried for help, which soon arrived. The drunken man was unceremoniously ushered down the stairs and into the street.

A weekly paper, speaking of the affair, intimates that Miss Stanley was perhaps under the influence of the "bowl." This is denied by her friends. She is said to be one of the Standard theater's highest priced singers, and is under the chaperonage of her mother, who is with her in all her travels.

LONG BEACH NOTES.

Cottagers Gone—Killed a Big Elk—New School House—Wreckage—Heavy Storm.

A correspondent writing from Long Beach, Wn., under date of September 23, says:

The heavy storm of Saturday and Sunday has caused unusual high tides, the water coming nearly over the banks.

Long Beach is to have a new hotel for next season, a much needed want for the accommodation of summer visitors.

The cottagers at Seaview and Long Beach have all gone, except about half a dozen families, who will stay about a week longer.

Alfred Baker, of the Tarlet farm house, killed a fine five-pronged buck last Thursday that weighed 200 pounds dressed, near Moore's ranch.

Sid Horn killed an elk near Long Beach last Friday, weighing 800 pounds. He refused an offer of $10 for the antlers, they being a very handsome pair.

There was a meeting of the school directors Saturday evening last to decide on building a $1500 school house near the Long Beach hotel, to be completed this fall.

A number of new cottages are being built this fall for Portland people. M. W. C. Noon's cottage is nearly completed at a cost of $1000, and is an ornament to the beach.

Wreckage from the steamer Manzanita, the government lighthouse tender which was dismanged a few days ago off the coast, has come ashore near Tinker's. A compass, five water buckets and a part of the pilothouse was picked up.

More Deep Sea Fish.—A dispatch was received by Manager Maddocks, of the Deep Sea Fishing Company, last evening from Captain Chipman, of the George H. Chance, which announced that he had arrived in Astoria and left up the river with a cargo of 50,000 pounds of deep sea fish. This is the Chance's third successful trip.

The history of Hood's Sarsaparilla is one of constantly increasing success. Try it this medicine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is carefully prepared from Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipsissewa, Juniper berries, and other well known and valuable vegetable remedies, by a peculiar combination, proportion and process, giving to Hood's Sarsaparilla curative powers not possessed by other medicines.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best blood purifier. It cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Boils, Pimples, all Humors, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, General Debility, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Complaints, overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite, strengthens the nerves, and builds up the whole system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has met peculiar and unparalleled success at home. Such is its popularity in Lowell, Mass. where it is made, that whole neighborhoods are taking it at the same time, and Lowell druggists sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than of all other sarsaparillas or blood purifiers. It is sold by all druggists. $1 six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

GRAND FORMAL OPENING

Of the Great Industrial Fair To-Morrow—The Programme.

Reduced Rates to and From the City Provided—Liberati's Band—Everybody Busy—The Price of Admission.

Enquiries are constantly being made as to what the charges for admission to the fair are to be. The price of single admission tickets will be 50 cents. The directors have also decided to issue consultation tickets good for seven admissions for $2 50, and good for fifteen admissions for $5. These tickets will be transferable. Season tickets for one person, not transferable, will be sold for $7 50. Holders of complimentary season or exhibitors' tickets will be required to enter the fair by the east door on the front.

Tickets will be for sale at the cigar stores of Schel & Mayer, M. A. Gunst & Co., and J. D. Moyer, and at the music store of Hoyt Bros.

The leading railroads will sell an excursion ticket to Portland with an Exposition coupon for one and one-fifth rate for round trip. These tickets are good for seven days, and can be purchased any time during the Exposition.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the North Pacific Industrial Association last evening the following programme for the opening night, Thursday, September 26, was decided upon:

Music, by Liberati's Grand Military Band.
Speech, by Hon. V. B. DeLashmutt, mayor of the city of Portland.
Speech, by Hon. Sylvester Pennoyer, governor of the state of Oregon.
Music, by Liberati's band.
Oration, by Hon. George H. Williams.
Speech, opening the exposition, by Frank Dekum, Esq., president of the North Pacific Industrial Association.
Putting the machinery in motion, by Miss Edith Waldo.

The exposition building resounds with the din of preparation, and at no previous fair have the exhibitors had their exhibits in such an advanced state so long before the opening.

The art gallery is crowded with paintings and statuary, and the collection promises to be by far the finest and most attractive ever seen here. The maroon-colored trimmings of the gallery will show off the contents to the best advantage.

The horticultural department is approaching completion and is a perfect bower of beauty. The number of rare and beautiful plants exhibited is very large, and some very beautiful effects in tapestry and landscape gardening have been produced.

The appearance of the central department, with the gardens, flags, pictures and the beautifully decorated platform and immense painting at the south end will form a striking and beautiful scene from the galleries when lighted by the brilliant rays of a score of arc lamps.

The engine room has been neatly painted and pots of beautiful flowering plants placed about the engines and dynamos, and the whole form about as handsome and neat an engine room as could be imagined.

The restaurant in the building has been leased to a Mr. Taylor from California. It is quite an extensive affair, where a great many people can obtain refreshments.

In every department exhibitors are displaying more taste and skill and expending more money than usual in fitting up the spaces allotted to them, and the general effect will be a pleasing surprise to visitors to the fair.

Liberati's band passed Helena at 3 P. M. yesterday on a special train, along the side of which was an immense sign bearing the following inscription: "Liberati's Grand Military Band bound for the Portland Exposition."

The silk weaver, who is to weave handkerchiefs bearing a picture of the exposition building, has arrived and has his loom nearly put together. Including the counters, it occupies a space of 25x16 feet in the center of the machinery hall. The gentleman, who brought this machine from New York, said when he saw the floral department on his arrival yesterday that had he been able to get a pair of it he would have spent six weeks in making a design of it to be woven in the silk goods, to be made in the exposition building.

A. Jeb, the automaton chess and checker player, is expected to arrive to-day. His apartments will be specially fitted up. This figure has played 500,000 games of chess and 250,000 games of checkers, and he has been beaten ten games of the former and less than one hundred of the latter. A. Jeb is considered to be the finest piece of mechanism ever made.

"THE CITY DIRECTORY."

A Brilliant Audience Witnesses Its First Production at the New Park—Corday's Muse-Theater.

Nothing could have been more auspicious than the brilliant reopening of the New Park theater last evening for the fall and winter season. On every hand, as one entered the theater, could be seen the handiwork of the painter and decorator. The dingy colors of the walls and ceiling had given place to a delicate tint, and the wood-work had been artistically finished in white and gold. The proscenium arch had been elaborately frescoed, new tapestry carpets lined the aisles and the boxes were tastefully draped with handsome curtains, the whole producing a neat and decidedly pleasing effect.

The house was filled above and below and it was evident from the expectant looks upon the faces of the audience that they anticipated an evening's thorough entertainment. In this, judging from the continuous laughter and applause that prevailed, they were not disappointed.

"The City Directory" by Russell's Farce Comedy company was the bill, and it can be said without exaggeration that a more pleasing, entertaining performance in the farce comedy line, has never been given in Portland. Every one had some idea what the nature of the entertainment was before he went, consequently, as all went merely to laugh and be amused, "The City Directory" amply answered all demands made upon it. Of course it has no plot, to speak of, but simply serves as a framework in which to display the entertaining capacities of as clever a company as one often sees.

Charlie Reed naturally comes first. In the character of John Smith, the detective, he gives a neat piece of character work. His assumption of the Irish actor was simply side splitting. In make up alone he was a study. His songs fairly captured the house, especially "He's on the Police Force Now," "McGee's Back Yard," and "Since Kate Learned How to Play." He was compelled to respond to repeated encores, and applause and shouts shook the house. There can be little doubt that he jumped at once into favor with the audience, and it is a safe prediction that he will be more of a favorite in "white face" than he ever was under burnt cork, which is saying a great deal.

Miss Roy Yohe, the handsome young lady with the deep contralto voice, sprang at once into the good graces of the audience. She has a wonderfully resonant and phenomenally deep-toned voice, and her singing of "Bid Me Good-Bye and Go," was enthusiastically redemanded. In the duet, "Johnny Jones and Sister Sue," with Charlie Reed, she gave the audience a treat which they would insist upon her repeating.

The "Rosebuds," Misses Maud Wilson, Sadie Kirby and Ollie Archmere, are as charming a trio and as clever workers as one could wish to see, and their concerted songs, as well as their solos, were thoroughly enjoyed and repeatedly encored.

Harry Standish made a most amusing John Smith, capitalist, and Wm. Collur, as the elevator boy and actor, was exceedingly clever.

Ignacio Martinette, an old favorite, does some graceful dancing and high kicking, and in his "athletic song" received tumultuous applause.

William F. Mack as the Tough was also a fine piece of characterization. He has a fine bass voice and his songs were generally applauded.

The "Razzle Dazz" song, by Martinelli, Collier and Mack, "caught on" tremendously and had to be repeated until audience and performers alike were tired. The several medleys were all well sung and greatly enjoyed. The music, however, throughout would have been far more effective, and therefore more enjoyable, if the orchestra had been more complete. It is somewhat trying to give music arranged for an orchestra of twelve or fourteen people with half that number.

"The City Directory" is a success and will no doubt pack the house the remainder of the week.

LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" commenced its Pacific coast tour last evening in Seattle, and the company, which is considered the very best that has appeared in Mrs. Burnett's charming play, produced the piece to one of the largest and most fashionable audiences of the season.

The play and the Little Lord himself scored an immediate success, and as the advance sale of seats for this and Wednesday evenings and matinee performances is very large, the engagement of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" will undoubtedly be the most successful ever known in Seattle.

The company will leave Seattle Thursday morning for Port Townsend, where they play for one night, thence to Tacoma for two nights and a matinee, after which Portland theater-goers will have an opportunity of judging for themselves of the merits of the play and the cleverness of the two children who play the little lord, Wallie Eddinger and Miss Flossie Ethyl. The engagement here will commence next Monday evening and is for five nights and two matinees, Wednesday and Friday of next week. The sale of seats for the event will begin Friday at 10 A. M. at Hoyt & Co.'s, music store and at M. A. Gunst & Co.'s, cigar store and as there has been quite a demand for seats, a long line of purchasers is expected in front of the above places the day of the sale.

CORDRAY'S MUSEE-THEATER.

"Peck's Bad Boy" drew a fine house on its second performance, last night, and the pranks of that celebrated individual kept the audience in roars the entire evening.

Matinee this afternoon at 1:30 of the "Bad Boy."

EGGS SCARCE, BUTTER PLENTIFUL.—Eggs are very scarce in this market again. As this is the season when hens should be doing a rushing business, it is supposed that farmers are holding back supplies in hope of getting a large price. They are liable to be disappointed, however, as a carload of Eastern eggs is already on the way here and soon to arrive. From the large number of eggs received here during the summer it was thought that at last the supply was going to be equal to the demand. It will not be advisable for anyone to ship in too many Eastern eggs, for the Oregon hens may get down to their work soon, surprise the public and cause shippers of Eastern eggs to lose heavily, as they did last year. There is no talk of Eastern butter coming in yet. The creameries established this year in this state have increased the output of butter, and the fact that it is cheap and plentiful in California has a tendency to keep out the Eastern article.

ARREST THE REAL OFFENDERS.—An ordinance was re-enacted a short time since to prevent persons from scattering bills, dodgers, etc., on the streets and sidewalks, and to provide for the punishment of those throwing or causing such papers to be thrown on the streets and sidewalks. Notwithstanding this, some persons send boys out with bills, which are handed to persons on the streets. Many refuse to take them, and those who do soon drop them, and the boys frequently scatter a number of the papers along the sidewalks. The police have been instructed to keep a bright look-out for the violators of this ordinance, and will arrest any one found scattering papers on the streets. It would seem as if the person sending the boys out with the line who caused the papers to be scattered about, and if a few of these were arrested and fined it might put a stop to the practice.

ENCROACHING ON THE STREET.—Complaint is made that two buildings have been put up on B street just east of Fourteenth, near the Exposition building which encroach upon Alder street, as shortly to be opened. It seems singular that people can put up buildings in the streets without any interference. It is supposed to be the duty of the chief of police to attend to obstructions in the street; but people seem to build anywhere they please all the same. If the buildings were only to remain there during the fair it would not make so much difference; but when a man gets a building erected where he has no right to erect one, it is generally a difficult matter to get him to remove it. An ounce of prevention is not only worth a pound of cure, but it is a great deal cheaper.

PORTLAND MEDICAL SOCIETY.—The regular monthly meeting of the Portland Medical Society was held in Dr. Panton's office, Monday evening, Dr. Saylor in the chair, and Dr. C. H. Wheeler, secretary. An interesting paper on skin grafting was read by Dr. G. M. Wells, after which Dr. Panton gave the history of a case of chloroform narcosis. A general discussion followed the presentation of each subject. The meetings held by this society are growing in interest as is evidenced by the steadily increasing attendance. By these meetings the resident physicians foster the ties of professional fraternity, and by the exchange of ideas, increase their own knowledge and through that their ability. The object is mutual benefit.

MAIL FROM ALASKA.—A number of merchants were complaining at noon yesterday, that they had not received their Alaska mail. Some whose mail had been sent by express had received it, but the post office was not on time. The Elder was delayed ten days on account of the wreck of the Ancon, and will not come around here this trip, but sails from Seattle to-day. Those merchants who were expecting orders for goods from Alaska were in a quandary on account of not receiving their mail, but hoped it might arrive on the afternoon train from the Sound, but how orders were to be filled and get to Seattle in time to catch the Elder was a puzzle.

TO BE PUSHED THROUGH.—Mr. J. M. Thompson, who has the contract for completing the cable road to the Heights, arrived here yesterday from Seattle. He states that he has 200 tons of rail and slot on the way from San Francisco, and that 200 tons more will be shipped next week. The work of construction will be commenced in earnest next week, and a force will be employed that will astonish the natives. Mr. Thompson does not care to say much until he has begun work, and then his deeds will speak louder than words.

CONFERENCE OF THE UNITARIAN CHURCH.—This evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the church, corner Seventh and Yamhill, the annual conference of Unitarians of the Pacific coast will be convened, to listen to the conference sermon, which will be preached by Rev. Thomas Van Ness, late of Denver, Colo., and now the general agent of the A. U. A. for the coast. On Thursday morning the business meeting is held, Hon. Walter J. Thompson, of Tacoma, presiding.

ACCIDENT TO A MILLHAND.—George A. Hall, an employe of the North Pacific sawmill had a toe amputated at St. Vincent hospital yesterday morning. The amputation was necessitated by an accident by which the right foot was caught in some of the mill machinery the day before. Considering the comparatively slight injuries and the nature of the accident, Hall had a lucky escape.

ENGAGEMENT POSTPONED.—The engagement of Mrs. Scott-Siddons, the noted dramatic reader, who was to appear in the New Park theater Thursday and Friday evenings, September 26 and 27, has been postponed one week, making the dates October 3 and 4.

FILLED WITH STRANGERS.—The town is thronged with strangers already, many of whom have been at the State Fair, and by Thursday there will be more people in Portland than ever before. Ample preparations are being made to lodge and feed them all.

DRESSED MEAT COMPANY.

Butchery to Be Done on An Extensive Scale.

Several Well Known Meat Dealers Associate Themselves Together—Cold Storage To Be Brought Into Play—The Abbatoir.

Articles of incorporation of the American Dressed Meat Company were filed in the county clerk's office yesterday. The incorporators are: John F. O'Shea, James B. O'Shea, M. M. Spaulding, Emanuel May, Thomas Papworth and Adolph Burckhardt. The capital stock is $150,000, divided into 1500 shares of the par value of $100 each.

This means that Messrs. O'Shea Bros., who some time since sold out their business to Messrs. Spaulding, Papworth, May and Burckhardt, have associated themselves with them, and are going into the butchery business on a more extensive scale than ever.

The company has purchased 1100 acres of land adjoining Troutdale station on the O. R. & N. Co.'s road and propose to erect there extensive abbatoirs and cold storage warehouses for the slaughter and preservation of beef, etc., on a large scale. The land purchased by the company consists largely of fine bottom land along the Sandy and Columbia and a tract near the station, on which is a fine spring, where the abbatoir and cold storage warehouses will be erected, and which will be connected with the railroad by a side track.

It is intended to have cattle bought by the company pastured in the meadows till they have recovered from the excitement of traveling by rail and their blood has cooled, before they are slaughtered, and then the carcasses will be placed in cold storage and kept as long as desired. This will deliver the city to large extent from the nuisance of bands of wild cattle being driven through streets, and will prevent all complaint on account of beef having to be cut up before it has been long enough killed to be good, as beef or other meats can be kept till they are tender and nice without the flavor being in the least impaired.

Two of the company will go East at once and visit Chicago, Kansas City and Omaha, to inspect the dressed meat establishments there and secure the very latest and best machinery and appliances for their abbatoir and cold storage warehouse, which will be constructed on the same principles as those connected with the largest establishments East. As soon as this machinery can be got here the work of building will be commenced, and pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

This enterprise is one of considerable magnitude, and will require a great deal of money and experience to carry it on successfully, but the time has come when such an establishment is a necessity, and some one had to go into this business, and there are certainly no others better adapted to make a success of it than this company.

Take the Northern Pacific railroad, the vestibuled sleeper and dining-car route for all points East. Office, No. 121 First street, corner Washington.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE.
For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food. Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc., raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.
Prof. H. A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported:
"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government.
"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tarter, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.

WASHINGTON'S VOTE IN 1

Official Returns of the Election for Congressman Last November.

Tables Valuable for Reference and Comparison With the Vote To Be Cast for Same Government Next Tuesday.

For the purpose of comparison with the result of the coming electoral contest in Washington, THE OREGONIAN publishes the following tables, giving the results in each precinct of the election, for delegate to Congress held in November, 1888. The figures are compiled from the official county returns on file in the office of the territorial secretary at Olympia:

BARN AND SILO BURNED

Two Cases of Alleged Spontaneous Combustion From Wet Hay

HILLSBORO Sept 24—The barn of Mr Sergeantbaker six miles east of town was burned last night Two calves perished and an enormous quantity of hay was consumed The barn was a large and commodious one and only four years old It is supposed spontaneous combustion was the cause, as some wet hay was left in a mass in one part of it The silo of Colonel F B Cornelius caught fire from the same cause this and last week

A SHAMEFUL INDIFFERENCE

The Birth of a Political Salvation Party Almost Unnoted

Men Change Every Seven Years an Witness the Different Views Expressed in That Time by the Hon T W Davenport

MALEPAY Sept 21 1889

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

The shameful indifference of a people on the downward road to degradation and ruin to the birth of a political party whose avowed object is the prevention of the trusts and monopolies that are crushing their liberties, is one of the curious phases of human nature Such a party was duly born in Salem a fortnight ago in Salem and I am grieved beyond expression to see the state four which I began two days afterward absorb the attention of these stricken and helpless people to such an extent that the new party seems to have fallen into a desuetude both innocuous and indecorous

Such criminal carelessness on the part of a people who are not only threatened with pauperization and degradation by giant monopolies and trusts but who are so surely doomed to be the victims of government of knave by knaves and for knaves is made the more disgusting and horrid by the fact that more interested to have been taken in Delusion's snare Delusion's winning the famous trotting race on Friday than in the birth of a party which addresses its decorous words to the world

When the Creator permitted the universe to come upon a government that is commonly supposed to grant and guarantee to every citizen every privilege and more but our fathers enjoyed fifty years ago is denounced as being a government of knaves by knaves and for knaves there is surely something wrong either in the government or the people which endorses the above sweeping objurgation

It has been only seven years since the gentleman who made the above declaration which was loudly cheered by the convention then in the most painful throes of political parturition was a candidate for an important office on the republican ticket and was making speeches for his own election Then it was a government of the people by the people and for the people for I heard him say so Now we are all knaves like the governing and governed Why Surely the Union party itself would take no more excruciating delight in discovering dishonesty in the public service under a republican rule than would have adorned the democratic frontispiece if such a disclosure could have been made during Cleveland administration, and yet while the clans from the South and the hash-brizouks of the North affected to revel in the seventh heaven of absolute delight whose chief bliss would be the revelation of dugs of republican knavery that party came through the four years of ceaseless democratic investigation with a triumphant banner whose purity is second only to the cross of Calvary (See election returns for November 1888)

But we are not only all knaves but it is positively asserted by the reform forces that we are all ignorant and degraded by the grim trusts and monopolies Where and how and when? Who did it and how did he accomplish it? What right or privilege did the author of this amazing declaration have seven years ago when he was whooping it up for the republican ticket and his own election, that he can not now enjoy unmolested in all its healthful energy? What single article now manufactured in this government of knaves whether under the control of a trust or not that can not be purchased cheaper than at any other period of our history? Name one

Even coal oil which is just now controlled by a democratic trust whose magnitude is unsurpassed in the United States sells for only 27 cents per gallon while twenty years ago when we had a government of the people I used to pay $1 50 per gallon regularly This was in Eastern Oregon and was caused partly because coal oil was higher without a doubt than it now is, and partly because no gin it monopoly Having yet built a railroad into that country freights were exceedingly high

In the halcyon days when we had no giant monopolies in the shape of railroads and steamboat companies our farmers used to go to Portland on horseback and hauled their produce there by team That was the only right any farmer of the Willamette valley had then as to the question of transportation and so far as I can see but right still remains but as dilute used as though it had been ruthlessly wrested from it and chrome licker by a tyrannical government of knaves

It is an actual fact, Mr Editor though you may find it difficult to believe that when the average reformer wants to get to a convention where he can vituperate his grievous tribulations against the giant monopolies he buys a ticket from one of them uses their road as a means of transportation instead of going on horseback as he has a perfect right to do and then splits his thorax chanting a lamentation over his lost rights

In reality however the party now under consideration is nothing but the prohibition party under a very thin disguise in fact not much of a disguise was attempted When will the followers of that queer idea ever learn the plainest lesson of every day experience which is that it was never intended the men should be made good by law? In our penitentiaries everybody is industrious everybody goes to church on Sunday and nobody steals—three excellent virtues that exist nowhere else this side of heaven but God never intended that every body should be good by subjecting them to the rules that apply in our state prisons

The idea of making men good by removing every temptation to be bad escaped the attention of Jehovah, only to be afterwards originated by the prohibitionists

Indeed I am just now reminded that I have often heard one of the best prohibition talkers in the state, a very able gentleman recently from Michigan and at present a minister in Salem declare in sermons that if God had created man without surrounding him with temptations and the power to resist them he would have been in no wise above the brute and to illustrate this I have heard him say that a man may go into a neighbor's corn field and take corn choudes finely and it will be called stealing because he knew it was wrong, but a hog might do exactly the same thing and it would not be stealing, and his conclusion plainly stated was that the moral responsibility or conscience possessed by man which enables him to distinguish right or wrong is all that distinguishes him from the lower order of creation

Now it necessarily follows that if in order to be a man and not a hog a man must have power to know right from wrong, he must be constantly surrounded by good and evil If a man never saw a horse or a cow he could never tell one from the other or if in all his life he was never to see a mouse or a rat, what would be the use of the power of distinguishing one from the other, even if he had it?

Hence when God created man he created evil and wrong to surround him with in order that his conscience might have something to do How it would have been a joke on my friend in Salem the professor if in the creation God had made man and followed the prohibition idea of making him good by refusing to place him in the midst of any temptation because he insists that without being surrounded with temptations and the power to resist them he would be only a brute and yet, in his lectures on prohibition he declares the surest way to make man good is to remove his greatest temptation by crushing the saloon

If the man who never steals corn because he was never tempted to steal it is on the same moral plane with the hog (see the professor's sermon) what is the exact status in the lower animal kingdom of the man who never drinks whisky because he is never tempted to drink it? (See the professor's lecture)

I can readily understand how an atheist or free thinker might be a prohibitionist but how a man who believes in a strict interpretation of the Bible and its teachings as to God's methods of dealing with the human family can hold that to make men good you must remove all temptation to do wrong 'passeth all understanding'

Ah, well, that convention was a queer mixture they all had their grievances but then some men are born growlers, some have growls thrust upon them and some achieve growls The committee on credentials in the union convention found all three of the above conditions amply represented, and not a proxy among the lot.

T T GEER.

P S—No man can more cheerfully renounce than I do that my friend the professor has in three months quadrupled his capital by judicious investments in Salem notwithstanding we are living in a government of knaves by knaves and for knaves and which fosters giant monopolies that are grinding us all to pauperization and degradation by their iniquitous trusts

IDAHO'S PROGRESS

Governor Shoup's Report—Forming Plans for Irrigation

BOISE CITY Idaho Sept 21

Governor Shoup is preparing his annual report to the secretary of the interior He designs this report to be the most complete in showing the resources of Idaho ever gathered in one official document He will follow in general the statistical plan so carefully devised by his predecessor Governor Stevenson in order to facilitate comparison year by year but will add many interesting details The answers to letters of inquiry for statistics of valuable facts but as yet not tabulated or prepared for public use His attention as a practical miner has been first drawn to the returns of the production of the precious metals This has been an soft year for Idaho in many respects and in many counties on account of scarcity of water for working the placers mining has especially suffered Outside of one county there is a considerable net loss but this one county reports a larger yield than all of Idaho last year The following is the reported mineral product of Shoshone county for the current year

Gold	$ 600 000
Silver	3 10 000
Lead 50 000 tons	3 000 000
Total	$6 600 000
Total Idaho product 1888	8 300 000

Our city was honored yesterday and today by the presence of Captain Clarence E Dutton chief engineer of the irrigation survey under the immediate direction of Major J W Powell director of the United States geological survey Captain Dutton was accompanied by State Engineer Hill of California Major Powell was here in August with the senate committee on irrigation Thus this question of irrigation the most important of all questions bearing upon the material interests of Idaho is undergoing investigation here by the most distinguished scientific specialists known to the government

There are six or seven parties of civil engineers now in the field under the direction of Captain Dutton preparing data upon the practicability of irrigation and the storage of water in reservoirs There are parties in Arizona and New Mexico another party is at work in California under Mr Hall The Colorado party is in charge of State Engineer Nettleton The Utah party is under Major Newell The Idaho party is under A D Foote of this city and it is expected that Wyoming will be made a part of his field Mr Foote has for years made the subject of irrigation his special study and is a living cyclopedia of information on the gathering storage and distribut on of water Readers of Century Magazine who have been delighted during recent years by the artistic sketches of Mary Hallock Foote will be pleased to learn that the distinguished authoress is the wife of Engineer Foote a resident of this place

Captain Dutton's preliminary report will be presented to his chief in time for transmission to congress in December, but he admits that it will not be possible for the engineer corps to formulate definite opinions upon the greater questions before them or another year Doubtless these opinions will be used as a guide in the expenditure of millions of dollars to be appropriated by congress and they will feel under the highest obligation to plan a system which will be complete and certain in its operations

Referring to the water supply of Idaho Capt Dutton is of the opinion that in this respect our territory is in advance of all others in the mountain region He finds the quantity of water greater it is distributed over a greater area and the facilities or creating reserve supplies are unequaled If they can bring their plans to a successful conclusion and utilize as they hope to do all the springs and streams so far discovered and measured Idaho will yet become the empire state of the mountains As great as are the possibilities of the territories to the south east and north of us it is admitted by all the authorities that a far greater proportion of Idaho can be reclaimed and that its products will be of greater variety and value

The protest of Governor Shoup against taking the waters of Bear lake in this territory to supply the city of Ogden in Utah is awakening profound discussion Captain Dutton says the government of the United States knows no geographical lines within the national boundaries and that it cannot under the appropriation of water merely because the water rises on one side of a territorial line finds its source on another side of the same line the water must go where it will yield the greatest good to the greatest number In discussing another ph

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

The Present Wheat Situation, and the Prospect as to Prices.

Fall Planting of Strawberries—Agricultural Rules —Sand for Heavy Soils—In Favor of Dehorning.

The American Cultivator publishes the following editorial on the above subject. We reproduce it and submit it to our readers for whatever it is worth in their judgment:

Although the season much has been said by the commercial papers about our own large wheat crop. We believe this crop is a large one, but owing to the drought in the Northwest, and wet weather at harvesting time and before in the winter wheat sections, the yield of sound wheat will now hardly come up to the 500,000 bushels that were promised. Still we shall have much more wheat to export than we had a year ago, when the crop in this country was greatly under the average. Yet all through growing season, even before our own crop was assured, commercial journals have discoursed glibly about an assured surplus of last year's crop that will be available for use this season. We do not believe anything in this old surplus story. The wheat crop of 1888 was more thoroughly used up before the new harvest than it ever has been, in late years, at least. True, our wheat exports fell off, but that was because we did not have so much wheat to spare. The visible surplus steadily ran down, and that, rather than an invisible surplus, that existed only in imagination, is the measure of our wheat supply.

But the strong point in the present wheat situation is the fact that the wheat crop of most other countries which supply Europe with bread is exceptionally short. We have been expecting this, from reports we had seen in foreign papers, and also from knowledge of the fact that wheat has for years been too low in price to be anywhere a profitable crop. It is this, more than aught else, which has, we believe, reduced the world's wheat crop. As a recent gram congress of statisticians, held in Vienna, the European deficiency was reported much greater than even the most unfavorable reports had led anyone to suppose. Excepting Turkey, Greece, Spain and Portugal, for which no figures have been received, the wheat crop of Europe is estimated at 872,000,000 bushels, as against 1,194,000,000 a year ago, and 1,110,000,000 as the average of the past five years. This shows an apparent deficiency of 223,000,000 bushels as compared with last year, an amount that this country cannot possibly supply.

Unless these figures are grossly deceptive, it is plain that farmers in this country can afford to hide their time and hold on for a much better price than has recently been offered. The fact that the potato rot has greatly shortened this crop, and that in many states corn is poor from rain and cold weather, will also have its effect in making wheat dearer. Not only will wheat and other food products be higher the coming season, but it will be more than a year before, even with good crops, increased production can reduce the price. It is, we believe, safer now to prepare for a large acreage of wheat next season than it has been for the past eight or ten years. As soon as higher prices are fully established farmers will everywhere try to increase their cultivated area, in order to secure larger crops. But in all other countries save this farmers are held back by the lack of their present meagre wheat crop. They have neither the means nor the wish perhaps to push wheat production extensively next season. With an extra large wheat crop here, for which there will surely be a good demand, it is possible for American farmers to maintain the lead they have gained in wheat growing.

No farmer is justified in selling his wheat at present low prices. The facts as to the shortage in Europe are known, and it cannot be long before wheat materially advances from what is very near the lowest price it has ever attained. Those who must sell this fall can get probably a fair price, one that if the crop is good will prove paying prices. If less be secured, as it may be by nearly all, the farmer need not complain, though the price afterwards goes higher, as we believe it will before spring. But it will be a shame if the bulk of the American wheat crop is this year sold, as it has been for several years past, without profit to the producer. The conditions of European crops and probable demands are utterly incompatible with low prices, continued until a new crop can be grown, and we believe they warrant the belief that paying prices are probable for at least a year and a half longer.

Fall Planting of Strawberries.

The Husbandman says: Many are intending to put out some strawberries this fall; the following from Crawford's July report will be valuable to those who have had no experience in this line, or who have had an experience that was not satisfactory. By fall planting we mean the transplanting of runners of the present year's growth, whether it be done in July or October. By care and skill it may be done as soon as the young roots are an inch in length, or even earlier. The rule is, however, that a plant is not old enough to set until it has branched roots; nor is it self-supporting until some time after. For this reason it is necessary to remove one or more of the leaves when setting out very young plants in the summer, lest more sap be evaporated than the roots can supply. As the season advances more roots are developed, and there is less risk in the operation. While it is true that the earlier the work is done, other things being equal, the greater will be the crop, it is equally true that plants set early in September, when there is more moisture in the air and soil, usually do better than those set in a hot and dry time. If delayed too late, the danger is that they will not get sufficiently rooted to enable them to resist the effects of alternate freezing and thawing. Young plants in the summer are comparatively tender and sappy, and much more easily injured than when more mature. If taken out of hard ground, the roots may be bruised or broken, and if exposed to the sun or wind for even a few minutes, many of the fine hair roots will be destroyed. For this reason, it is not best to take up plants in a dry time. It is better to let them grow where they are until rain moistens the soil so that all the roots may be lifted without injury. The later the work is done, the closer should plants be set to each other, so that they may fill the row with roots and shade the surface with their leaves. If set twelve inches apart in the row in July, ten inches will be enough in August, eight in September and, six in October. The sun should never be allowed to shine on bare ground between plants in the row during the winter and early spring.

The soil for fall-set plants should be rich, so that their roots may find what they need near by, for they have not time to go far after it. It is well to prepare the place a week or two in advance, so as to let the ground get settled. And it is very important that the crown of the plant be not covered.

If the weather be dry and hot after planting, so that the plants wilt, they should get one good watering in the evening and the soil should be stirred the next morning. If this proves insufficient they should either have some shade during the heat of the day or the first leaves that wilt should be removed to lessen the evaporating surface.

If it is desired to test a new variety, the fall is the best time to plant it, for the reason that it will bear the next season and enable one to decide as to its value and give ample time to greatly increase the stock.

Fall-set plants must be protected during the winter. Two inches of straw will answer. Of course the drainage should be such that no water can lie on or near the surface.

Sand for Heavy Soils.

A writer in the Rural Press says that there is perhaps no more profitable method of improving heavy clay soils than by a liberal application of sand, when this material is at hand. Such soils are naturally lifeless, and by supplying this element the land is made porous, which insures better results from cultivation. Bottom lands which contain a large amount of sand never become hard and compacted. Hence the sand will, in a measure modify those heavy upland soils in the same way. Sand not only imparts porosity, but warmth as well. There is a warmth in sandy loams that never leaves it, no matter how excessive the cropping may be. This quality will enable it to germinate a crop very early in the season, and offers for most crops a favorable condition for rapid growth and maturity. The lack of sand may be offset, to a certain extent, by under drainage, which fulfills the same condition. By combining the two very satisfactory results may be expected. These lands are not naturally so unproductive in most cases, as may be determined by analysis, but the difficulty lies in that the conditions are not favorable for the utilizing of the plant food. Manure may be applied, and indirectly it will add warmth to the soil; but when the land is in this condition the full value of the manure cannot be realized. When there is a sand bank on a farm of this kind it will amply repay the expenditure of application by increased yields in the crops.

Another advantage sand has for improving the soil is, that when once applied it lasts indefinitely; its effects are permanent. Hence the outlay may be considerable and yet be a paying investment.

Our attention was first called to the matter several years ago. A gravel bank was being opened in one of the fields of the farm, and while plowing and scraping away the upper stratum of earth, considerable of the fine gravel which lay underneath was mixed with the soil. Thinking this might be of value it was drawn upon the field to a "heavy" spot some distance away. The result was satisfactory. No manure was applied, but the crops grew there as they never did before, and though it is past fifteen years since this was done, the improvement is almost as marked as ever.

The addition of sand for the improvement of soils is not new, but it has not been made as prominent as it deserves to be. Florists invariably recognize this fact. As the problem of increasing the capacity of farming lands everywhere becomes more complex, the value of sand as an improver of the soil should be recognized.

Green Manuring.

S. M. Tracy contributes the following upon the above subject to the Husbandman: Green manuring, or the plowing under of green crops, is beneficial in two ways: First, by practically giving the soil a rest for a year; and second, by increasing the amount of available plant food. Nearly all soils contain an abundance of plant food to produce a full yield of almost any crop, but most of this food is in an unavailable condition. This insoluble matter is acted upon differently by different plants, each kind of plant taking certain elements and leaving others in a condition in which they are ready to be absorbed by some other kinds of plants. The beneficial effects of crop rotations depend on this principal, and the crops commonly used for green manuring are not those cultivated for other purposes. By using special crops for green manures, the plants find an abundant supply of food which has been rejected by the farm crops, and so can make a vigorous growth where regular crops would fail. The materials which they take up from the soil and from the air, they do not remove from the field, but by their decay in the soil they leave available for future crops not only the elements of which they themselves are composed, but also those which have been rendered available by root action of the manurial crop. In addition to this they leave in the soil nearly their whole weight in humus-making material.

The most valuable crop for green manuring are those which have the deepest roots, as such will draw up from the subsoil a large proportion of their mineral food, which, when the crop is plowed under, is left near the surface, where it is available for such shallow-rooted plants as oats, corn and grasses. In decaying, the deep plant roots leave minute openings in the subsoil, which are valuable aids in making the subsoil porous and permeable to water.

Roots of Plants Good Fertilizers.

An important part of good farming consists in husbanding all the resources of the farm. One important resource of fertility is found in the stubble and use of plants. The roots of all plants serve to support the plants themselves and to gather food and water from the soil; they contain woody fiber and so are useful in providing vegetable matter to the soil, for which reason clover, being a full grower and a plant that extends its roots deeply in the soil, becomes a recognized agent in producing an improved condition in a partially impoverished soil. In some experiments at the Storrs school experiment station with cow peas, it was found that so much of the roots as could be pulled from a light loam with yellow and compact subsoil would give a yield of 553 pounds per acre. Another section of the same field would give of stubble and first six inches of roots 912.3 pounds, and that to a depth of forty-two inches the yield would be 1207.8 pounds per acre. We therefore get some idea of the quantity of matter that under ordinary circumstances can be secured from an acre of ground. It is also found that an average crop of cow peas grown will leave in the soil by virtue of the roots and stubble, 14.5 pounds of nitrogen, 2.8 pounds of phosphoric acid; and 6.4 pounds of clover roots will leave in the soil 35.5 pounds of nitrogen, 10 pounds of phosphoric acid and 15 pounds of potash, and with the stubble 180 pounds of nitrogen, 71 pounds of phosphoric acid and 77 pounds of potash, or a value equivalent to that paid for some of the commercial fertilizers in the market per ton. Thus it is seen the important part played by the roots of plants in the matter of adding to fertility.

Buckwheat.

The Country Gentleman says: The production of buckwheat in the United States has not, like other grains, kept pace with the increase of population, and, according to the census returns, has been continually declining as a whole. In the year 1839 (in round numbers), 7,000,000 bushels were produced; in 1849, 9,000,000; in 1859, 17,000,000; in 1869, 10,000,000; in 1879, not quite 12,000,000. The crop of 1839 would have supplied 21 pounds to each inhabitant; that of 1849, 19 pounds; that of 1859, 28 pounds; that of 1869, 13 pounds; that of 1879, 12 pounds.

The crop is chiefly grown in the cooler parts of the country, in the regions that are hilly or mountainous. Relatively a larger proportion grows at higher altitudes than any other grain, and with a lower temperature than any other grain except rye. Fifty-nine per cent. of the crop grows between latitudes 41 and 43 deg., and nearly 81 per cent. between latitudes 40 and 44 deg. New England produces over 1,000,000 bushels, and the Middle states over 8,500,000; the other states lying along the northern border—Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin—with the mountainous belt of the Alleganies extending down into Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, produce 1,500,000 bushels more, these altogether producing upward of 91 per cent. of the whole crop of the country. It is raised in considerable quantities in Oregon, but the rich soils of the prairie region and the warmer climate of the South are alike unfavorable to its successful growth. It naturally belongs to the cooler and rougher regions that are not subject to too early frosts, and can be raised on hillsides and thin soils where other grain cannot be profitably raised.

Animal Nutrition.

Professor Sunborn, in an article in the National Stockman and Farmer reviewing the subject of ancient times and their support of immense armies while the people had only the crudest implements of tillage, and calling attention to the vast population of China, Japn and India, upon limited areas, using only the rudest implements of tillage, holds that "the main key to the understanding of these facts, without which we would be forced to suppose a very high type of agriculture, and indeed higher than all of the data warrants us in believing existed, rests in the fact that these nations raised comparatively few cattle and fewer horses. With increased density of population comes decreased relative density of cattle. This is true not only of ancient civilization, with their crude implements and lack of cast iron, which is a want almost remediless to a higher order of development of machinery, but also of modern civilization; this cannot fail (from present indications) to be true in the near future of this country. It is no rash prophecy to assert that babies will increase in the future in this country faster than calves; that the margin that exists between production and consumption will grow less and less until they meet, and at last consumption will exceed production, and beef of South America will press itself upon the Atlantic coast, provided that the present rate of meat consumption is maintained."

A Bulletin on Grasses.

Dr. Vasey, botanist of the United States department of agriculture, has just completed a new bulletin on the agricultural grasses of the United States, comprising not only the information contained in the bulletin on the same important subject, issued in 1884, but a great many important additions. There is an important and interesting chapter upon the cultivation of grass as an agricultural industry, containing historical facts, and numerous very practical suggestions. In addition, also, to the scientific description given of each variety or species of grass for the benefit of more investigating minds, the doctor gives considerable information of a more practical nature in regard especially to those grasses which have been found by experience to be the best adapted to the wants of the farmers in different sections of the country. Practical suggestions, for instance in regard to the quantity of seed required per acre, as to date of sowing, best time for cutting, the soil and climate to which the various grasses are specially adapted, and in the case of pasture, suggestions as to the proper combination of different grasses to secure the best results; all these facts are plainly set forth, so as to be with a fair comprehension of any practical and ordinarily intelligent reader, however unfamiliar with scientific names.

Glue Value of Grass.

Upon the above subject Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, discourses as follows:

"Next in importance to the divine profusion of water, light and air, those three physical facts which render existence possible, may be reckoned the universal beneficence of grass. Lying in the sunshine among buttercups and dandelions of May, scarcely higher in intelligence than minute tenants of that mimic wilderness, our earliest recollections are of grass; and when the fitful fever is ended, and the foolish wrangle of the market and forum is closed, grass heals over the scar which our descent into the bosom of the earth made, and the carpet of the infant becomes the blanket of the dead.

"Grass is the forgiveness of nature—her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with the ruts of cannon, grown green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass grown like rural lanes, and are obliterated. Forests decay; harvests perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal; beneficent as the sudden bosts of winter, it withdraws into the impregnable fortress of its subterranean vitality, and emerges upon the first solicitation of spring. Sown by the winds, by wandering birds, propagated by the subtle husbandry of the elements, which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outline of the world.

"It invades the solitudes of deserts, climbs the inaccessible slopes and forbidding pinnacles of mountains, modifies climates and determines the history, character and destiny of nations. Unobtrusive and patient, it has immortal power of aggression. The wished from the thoroughfare and field, it bides its time to return, and when vigilance is relaxed, or the dynasty has perished, it silently resumes the throne from which it has been expelled, but which it never abdicates. It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in the earth or air; yet, should its harvest fail for a single year, famine would depopulate the world."

In Favor of Dehorning.

I. C. Steel in the Rural Press says:

Dehorning is just what I have claimed for it, and when the operation is properly performed, it is not excessively cruel or dangerous. The cattle we have dehorned are in fine condition, and I see no reason to regret the absence of their horns, but, on the contrary, they are safe to handle and have lost the power to injure each other. The wound made in dehorning soon heals and the scar is entirely covered with the hair growing about it, and the head looks smooth like cattle that never had horns.

As to the case carried before the land chief justice and Justice Hawkins on appeal, I know nothing about the evidence in court, but I do know that the statements on the decision are without foundation—almost in every case where an operation is skillfully performed—and the statement that dehorning is absolutely unnecessary does not apply to this country, to say the least of it.

I think it is question should be left to each individual engaged in the cattle business. What does a carved judge who never had any experience in handling cattle know about the business? Within a short time one of our most careful breeders had a thoroughbred cow fearfully injured by another cow thrust agther horn into her bag, and the same breeder felt obliged to dehorn a thoroughbred bull that had become so vicious that it was not safe to handle him or let him run in his field. I protest against legal interference with farmers' rights in their farm practice. Farmers are not fools, and this matter can be safely left to their judgment.

Vegetables and Fruit.

Queenslander.

People need to be frequently reminded of the fact that if they make a practice of using a variety of vegetables and fruits as a part of their ordinary diet, the doctor will not be needed to prescribe for them so frequently. Asparagus is a strong diuretic, and forms part of the cure for rheumatic patients at such health resorts as Aixles-Bains. Parsley is also useful as a diuretic, and those requiring such aid should make free use of it. Carrots are understood by the peasants of Savoy to be a specific for jaundice, and, although they are thought to be hard of digestion, it is only the yellow cure that is so. Onions are admitted to be rich in those alkaline elements which counteract the poison of rheumatic gout, and people who are of studious or sedentary habits should make a free use of them, gently stewed and served with other vegetables. The stalks of the cauliflower, if properly cooked, also serve a like purpose. Celery has acquired a great reputation as a remedy for rheumatism, and in many cases has proved beneficial. Watercress is prescribed by many medicin men as helpful to the liver and lungs. Many other vegetables are useful not only for their special medicinal properties, but as general regulators of the bowels and correctives, and withal they contain valuable elements of nutrition which should commend them, apart from every other consideration.

Agricultural Fairs.

The American Cultivator gives the following excellent opinion upon the above subject: As this is the season for county fairs farmers should endeavor to take time to visit one or more. See what other farmers are doing, and if any have had good success in growing better fruit or vegetables or raising better stock than the rest, strive to learn their methods. The mission of the agricultural fair is twofold. First, to show us what is better than we have, and to awaken our ambition to equal it; and next to teach us better methods of doing our work that we may produce better results. A day spent by an observing farmer or gardener among those who are engaged in the same business should be a profitable day, for the wisest will not fail to find someone who can teach him in some branch of his varied business, or at least suggest some idea which will enable him to teach himself. The information which a farmer gains by searching after it, by study and experiment, is more valuable to him, and is remembered longer, than that gained by reading or from lectures. Or rather, it is that which makes lectures and reading most useful to him.

Mixed Husbandry.

A writer in the Prairie Farmer aptly suggests that a farmer should not depend on any one particular crop, but cultivate such a rotation as his land is best adapted to, especially such as is wanted to be consumed on the place. He should cultivate largely such as will pay best, but not confine his operations entirely to these, for if they should fail he has nothing to fall back on to subsist his family and stock. To be self-reliant, home subsistence should be the first consideration, and those such as will find the readiest market at the highest cash prices.

Farming is considered the most independent occupation in the world, because the farmer can grow his own meat, bread, butter, fruit, vegetables, and materials to make his own clothing; but if he omits to do this and grows only one crop for market, he is just as dependent as other people, and as likely to be imposed on by high prices and damaged material. Brother farmers, as all we can get in this world is our living while we pass through it, let us supply our necessities first—feed well ourselves, families and all about us—then grow for sale such crops as will put money in our purses.

Watering Stock.

The Prairie Farmer says: Stock may have an abundance of dry food of the very best quality and fed to them at regular and proper intervals of time, but it will not thrive on these unless it has access to water whenever desired, to supply necessary moisture to the system, assist digestion and make pure blood. Running streams of water cannot be had in every pasture field, but substitutes can be supplied by artificial means. Wells can be put down, and pumps introduced to bring the water up; troughs can be placed to receive it, and stock can be watered at these troughs. When stock becomes very thirsty, by being kept from water too long a time, there is danger of it drinking too much; but when it has access to water frequently there is no danger of this. Young stock requires watering more frequently than older ones, as it drinks less at a time. Some farmers water their stock once a day, some two, some three times. This may do tolerably well in the winter for full-grown stock, when the weather is very cold; but during the warm weather of summer, when the days are long, thirst will be very injurious to stock running to pasture.

Early Maturity Desirable.

A report has gone the rounds of the press that cattle in Oregon were retrograding; or were not so heavy as in years past at the same age, and, further, that the grades were not so good as formerly, and that Oregon had few full-bloods. In speaking of this matter to several who are supposed to know, it was admitted by none that the Oregon cattle were retrograding, and that at no time in the history of the state were there more pains taken and more pride evinced than now in the fancy bloods and fine grades. But as the size of the Oregon cattle was the main point, it may be of interest to know why size is not the desirable thing in cattle for the beef block. The Canadian Gazette has a lengthy article touching upon this fact, from which we glean a few items for the observing.

In the first place, the Canadian breeder has free entry into the British markets. This gives him an advance over the American breeder of one-half penny to three farthings per pound, though the Canadian cattle are not nearly so desirable in the market as the United States stock.

On June 13 United States bullocks from 2 to 4 years old, weighing from 1,300 to 1,550 pounds average, sold in Liverpool at $3 85 to $4 25 per hundred live weight; the Canadian cattle brought from $4 50 to $5 per hundred. It is stated that about 750 pounds of beef is the weight sought after in every part of Great Britain, and not only wanted in preference to larger carcasses, but is sold at an advance. The day for heavy old fat beasts has passed, and the beast that is mature at twenty months is the bullock of the future.

Extreme size and weight is not so much in favor as formerly, and is therefore avoided by the Oregon farmers. Heifers seldom keep an animal until 4 years of age, and the majority of sales are made at 2 years old.

The English retail meat traders are desirous that the privilege of free importing live stock should be extended to the United States, Spain and Belgium, but it is doubtful if this request meets with general favor.

Agricultural Prospects.

A writer in the Husbandman observes that the outlook for farmers is exceedingly hopeful. Not so much because of large crops, or the shortness of the foreign wheat production, but on account of the wide-read movement against trusts, unequal taxation and lawyer legislation. Large crops are always welcomed with gladness on the part of farmers and all rural workers, but for the past few years our products have been so completely controlled by speculators, and railroad corporations have charged such excessive transportation rates that farmers hardly know whether it is best to laugh or cry over an abundant yield. Whether we have large or small crops the result is about the same. We have barely made a subsistence while railroad companies, trusts, and other manipulators of the people's rights have grown wealthy at a rate exceeding the wildest dreams of the most hopeful miner of two decades ago.

The future of agriculture, I believe was never brighter. All over the land an increased interest in farmers' meetings and conventions is manifest. Farmers are organizing as never before. The movement is general.

Muscle and Brains for Farmers.

The American Farmer says: The time has passed for farmers to depend on muscle and hard labor alone. They must use their brains as well as hands. They must do more thinking and planning if they desire to receive the best results. The lawyer studies law; the doctor medicine; the merchant must study commerce, the laws of supply and demand, and the banker must not commit himself with the principles and details of finance. Just so the farmer must study farming. The experiments of last year in crop raising and breeding must be remembered and put to practical use this year. Not only his own experience but that of his co-laborers should be his to profit by. Farming is a science, and there are many new things to learn in it yet; and the best and cheapest way to learn those things is by study. Take agricultural papers, read in their columns the experiences and observations of others, and avail yourself of the many useful hints and suggestions.

Highways.

The Husbandman.

"The need of good roads is at this time of year most strongly felt. Hauling farm produce to market has already begun, and farmers who are compelled to haul the products of their farms ten or fifteen miles over a rough, uneven road, are put to a great disadvantage. The loss caused by bad roads often more than balances the profits of the season's work on the farm. The advantages of good roads are many. Larger loads can be hauled over them without danger of breaking down. Horses are spared the constant strain and jerking of the wagon tongue which are caused by a stony, uneven roadbed. The time saved in a year is considerable, and farms are worth more where good roads predominate.

NOTES FOR FARMERS.

England will need to import 144,000,000 bushels of wheat during the next twelve months.

Russian grain crops are disappointing. Russia last year sent most of her grain to the European market. This year she will have to buy back her own grain at an increased price.

In all the agricultural science of the age no unfailing remedy for, or preventive of, potato rot has been found, hence the annual loss of millions of bushels of the crop, and uncertain prices for what remains.

Fall is the best time for grass seeding, and the seed should be put on liberally. Under the most favorable circumstances a light seeding may fairly cover the ground and if the soil be rich, grass and clover will spread to occupy vacant spaces. But it does this so slowly that weeds come in and often outgrow the grass. A dense soil, or a mat of young clover, is an excellent weed repressor. It keeps down entirely some of the small-seeded annuals, like ragweed and is a considerable check even to those strong-growing perennials, Canada thistle and quack grass.

Fowls need careful attention at this season if they are expected to lay during cold weather. Put them through the moulting season as quickly as possible by good feeding and plenty of exercise, taking care not to fatten them. Whole wheat is excellent for them, provided it is scattered among chaff and rubbish, so that they must scratch for it. The early spring pullets will probably begin to lay when they are five or six months old. If the laying habit is formed at an early age, egg production is increased, and the fowl becomes more valuable for future years.

It is useless to sow wheat when the soil is not in proper condition. To be in condition it should be compacted and moist near the surface. If the soil has been lumbered by heavy rains, do not try to mend it. Drill the seed in as shallow as possible so as to cover the grain, and if not all covered drag it and then leave it. Wheat thus sown is more likely to stand the winter than if the land was plowed up and made so mellow that the seed is necessarily covered to a greater depth. But so long as dry weather continues, keep the wheat seed out of the ground. It is better to sow late, with the soil in proper condition, than to get a large and unnatural growth in dry, hot weather. It is to be always remembered that wheat needs a moist, cool climate, and seeding should be delayed until this can be obtained.—American Cultivator.

Some farmers argue that it is best to set posts early in the fall when the ground is solid. Of course a post carefully set at any time will remain in its place, but fall is really a much worse time than is the spring. Digging the hole makes the soil loose, and if done in the fall it has not time to become compacted again. Water filters down through the loose soil, which will raise the post a little every year until it throws the post out altogether. If the soil has time to settle it absorbs less moisture, and after the first year, if the heaving out has not already begun, it will rarely begin. In the spring posts may be sharpened at the end and driven down into the soft earth, which will close firmly around them. It is necessary to put them below the freezing line, as the wedge shape which facilitates driving down also makes it more easy for the frost to heave the post up.—American Cultivator.

THE ITALY OF OREGON.

Mr. Harnett Continues His Description of Douglas County.

Myrtle Creek—Raising Prunes in Rich Abundance—Rich Mines Owned by Unprogressive Men and Towns That Will Grow Rapidly.

PART II.

In my previous article on this subject I had ceased just before having reached the important district of

MYRTLE CREEK,

The home of the prune, for truly, it is the center of that immense and rapidly growing industry. The village is located on Myrtle creek at its junction with the South Umpqua, right on the line of the railroad, and contains about 200 inhabitants, three stores, a church, schoolhouse, hotel, flouring mill and other branches of business incident to country life. Considering the wonderful fertility of the soil throughout the district, its early settlement, dating back as far as 1856, its modern development into the prune center of the Pacific coast, its former connection with the old California and Oregon stage line, its fine climate and exquisite loveliness of natural scenery, the extent and excellence of its placer and hydraulic mines, it is strange the town is not larger than it is today. Perhaps, though, not tonight of by us, there is a destiny with towns as with men, which irrespective of advantages, compels some to grow rapidly into importance and others to remain insignificant for a time. Whether this is so or not, in fact does not matter in this case, for though the village is small, Myrtle creek district, to-day, may be justly regarded as one of the most important in the state, its distinction springing from its especial adaptation to the growth of the prune—a business which has already assumed a prominence people generally really know nothing about.

In 1855, Mr. John Hall, a prominent farmer, whose fine estate joins the village, laid a portion out as a townsite, and from that time it has risen from a prosperous trading point to its present condition. Mr. Hall still resides in the village and takes a lead in all movements tending to its benefit. The farm consists of 360 acres, located originally, like most in the county, under a donation claim as far back as 1852. Seven years ago Mr. Hall commenced clearing his fruit acreage, and in fact continues to do so still. He has now thirty-five acres in fruits, chiefly prunes of the best varieties, containing 3000 trees. The bearing capacity of the prune is simply wonderful. Two hundred trees last year gave him 10,000 pounds of fruit, which he dried himself with a local furnace, which in principle is not a very ingenious invention. Except what were kept for family use, these dried prunes were shipped to Portland. Out of the 3000 trees, next year 400 more will commence bearing, and so on to the end, until, by arithmetic progression, on the basis of 10,000 pounds to 200 trees, his annual crop of prunes from 3000 trees, or two years more, will be 300,000 pounds. As a ruling price, a well-kept, full-bearing prune orchard, pays from $150 to $300 an acre. The apples and peaches, also a large crop, were shipped along the railroad north and south from Portland to Ashland, as the demand suggested. On this farm last year thirty-five acres produced forty bushels of the finest kind of corn to the acre. It has never yielded less than thirty bushels of wheat to the acre, with vegetables of all kinds in the same proportion. Yet it is really only a representative farm of the district. Lest this statement should be doubted, I will give one more instance. It would take a large-sized volume to describe all worthy of note.

The other farm I desire to refer to as illustrating the agricultural and horticultural capacity of the Myrtle creek district is that of

JOHN W. WEAVER,

Situated in Missouri valley, about a mile southeast from the village. This lovely valley is six miles long and one mile and a half wide. For picturesque scenery and fertility of soil it is superior to Old Ridley. In the center, and Sam Juan, south, at the end of the great Santa Clara valley, in California, and that is saying a great deal. Mr. Weaver came to Oregon as a boy with his father in 1851, and at this old home in Missouri valley the family have since remained. The farm now contains 400 acres, of which 60 acres are planted with 500 fruit trees of all kinds in the old orchard fashion and pay well.

Being, however, in the very center of the oldest prune-growing section in the state, like others, he turned his attention to this industry. He first planted 600 trees, since which he has added 3500 more. From his oldest trees last year he got 15,000 pounds of fruit; this year he expects 30,000 pounds. From these figures we can easily estimate the vast annual produce in pounds, when in two years more the whole of his 4000 trees are in full bearing. Last year Mr. Weaver shipped to Chicago and realized, after all expenses of freight and commission were paid, 6 cents a pound, instead of 8½ cents, which he was promised. This summer he intends visiting the prune districts of California to ascertain the best way to dispose of dried prunes, and it will pay him well to do so.

The gain of the ranch products of cereals yielded even in this exceptional dry season up to the usual standard—wheat, from 25 to 30 bushels an acre; oats, 40; corn, 65; with vegetables in the same proportion.

In every direction from the village through both north and south Myrtle, for a distance of twenty miles, the country is full of just such magnificent farms as the two representative ones I have described, but it is impossible to give the details of any more; nor indeed does the character of the district require me to do so. I may say, however, the owners are all planting prune trees, and that in two years more there will be over 20,000 additional trees bearing fruit. On this subject I have only to add that Lusk & Co. the leading fruit men of San Francisco, with buyers of his class all now admit that the Oregon prune is certainly the best yet produced in the whole United States. Such testimony is sufficient.

THE MYRTLE GOLD MINES.

The character and extent of these mines, placer and hydraulic, make it impossible for me to pass them over in silence. They exist for thirteen miles north up Myrtle creek, surrounded by ranches from which to draw food. When water could be obtained they have paid both white men and Chinamen well, but of late years little has been done. The

HYDRAULIC MINES,

Of which I principally wish to speak, occupy three square miles in the low hills, between Galice and Myrtle creeks, on which is enough fine timber for half a dozen large sawmills. There is plenty of pressure and plenty of dump for tailings. The formation is principally pipe-clay, with streaks of red, gritty sand, but no heavy gravel. The hills, from base to summit, can be washed from Galice creek to Myrtle creek, east and west, two miles. Catching Bros. are working two mines on Galice creek with giants, and taking out a considerable quantity of gold which is of a very high quality. Foster & Prescott also have a giant working on Myrtle creek, and Foreman & Howard are putting in one. There are several other miners working on the creek, ground sluicing; but they can only work an hour or two a day when rain comes. By this miserable method Catching Bros. took out $630 last winter. Yet, with a good, constant head of water, even with their small rig, I would wash in four days all the ground they washed in the whole season. There is no doubt of the richness of these diggings when systematically worked. To work them in such a manner, a canal must be cut from the North Umpqua, and as nearly as I can estimate, that will cost $50,000. It is, however, a safe undertaking, for 50,000 inches of water at 10 cents an inch, can be sold every day of the year, besides obtaining valuable holdings in the mines. I have interested a New York capitalist in the enterprise, and this canal may yet be cut. If it proves so, Myrtle will soon increase its population to thousands, and become one of the leading towns of the country. I shall do all I can to secure such a result.

FRUIT SHIPMENTS.

The correctness of my estimate of this district is best proved by the total shipments from the local railroad station. Mr. Chipfigures: Dried prunes 82,725 pounds; green fruit, 310,220 pounds; making 5150 bushels altogether for the year ending June, 1889. This, however, does not include fruits grown in the district but shipped from the other flag stations along the road. The total increase of general business at the local station, for the same period, was $3115. This speaks well for the people and the road also. In closing with Myrtle, I beg to acknowledge many special attentions some of the citizens, but especially from George Decamp, who so kindly placed his horses and meals, who so kindly placed his horses and meals, who so kindly placed his horses and meals

Follow the Rush to

PASCO!

Some day a large city will grow up at the junction of the Snake and Columbia Rivers.

HENRY VILLARD.

"KEEP YOUR EYE ON PASCO."

PASCO! PASCO!

The Gate City of the Northwestern Empire!

Vote for locating the [illegible] tal at Pasco.

Portland's Position [illegible] the Metropolis of the [illegible] Pacific Coast can only be maintained by her [illegible] building up cities [illegible] towns East of the Cascade Range

HELP BUILD UP PASCO

PASCO.

NEARLY all the vast products of wheat and other grain of Eastern Washington pay tribute to Pasco in their transit to tide water market at Tacoma, besides it is at the head of the lower Columbia navigation and a ship building point for both the lower and upper Columbia The almost unlimited productions of the Inland Empire are directly tributary to Pasco From the north the far famed Big Bend country will pour her wealth of cereals into the lap of Pasco by way of the noble Columbia. The timber from Chelan and Spokane rivers Coal, lime, marble, copper lead, silver, gold and iron ores very recently discovered near the banks of the Columbia and Okanogan rivers can reach the markets of the world by no practical route except to be floated down the Columbia river to Pasco

Pasco is a growing town and movements are in progress that will soon develop it more rapidly It has a fine area of arable land surrounding it, which is now in demand

Pasco, the country metropolis of the upper Columbia river valley, is situated on a level plateau which gently slopes to the Columbia river, the Mississippi of the Pacific coast, and near the junction of the grand Snake river, which rises in the mountain range of the Yellowstone National Park, with the Columbia, and also within some five miles of the junction of the Yakima river, the "laughing water" of Washington, which rises in the Cascade range and leaps on in its rapid descent to the Columbia, thus forming one of the grandest junctions of rivers on the Pacific coast, thus making Pasco their commercial and shipping center.

Pasco is the center and natural depot, or storage point, for the supplies and products of the rich grain producing plateau that surrounds her on every side and comprises the following well known localities Douglas, Lincoln and Adams counties, the Palouse country, the Potlach country, the Big Bend country and Camas Prairie

Asotin, Garfield and Columbia counties, Eureka Flat, Walla Walla valley, Umatilla county and the eastern portion of Klickitat and Yakima counties, known as Horse Heaven These favored localities surround her as a crown of gems and will soon make Pasco the storehouse for all grain awaiting shipment to either shipboard

Pasco already being a prominent railroad point, with three lines diverging therefrom, and a four h soon to be constructed, gives it railroad and transportation advantages excelled by no other town in Eastern Washington This is the only point at which the majestic Columbia is bridged, as also is the Snake river, near its mouth, with an iron structure that cost $1,250 000

The climatic conditions of Pasco, and of Franklin county, of which it is the county seat, are unexcelled for health, comfort and the growth of all kinds of products, including the semi-tropical

THE magnificent location and natural site for a large commercial and distributing city, to exist where Pasco now stands, has induced a number of wealthy bankers, capitalists and shrewd real estate men to form a stock company, with a paid up capital of $300,000, for the purpose of developing and building up a city where nature designated one to be

There is not a spot on the map of the whole of North America where another such a junction of two navigable rivers meet

As a water transportation center Pasco rivals St. Louis, Mo. As a railway center it is already the point from which the Northern Pacific's vast system radiates east, west, north and south. The Hunt system feeder will soon have its terminus at Pasco

The Union Pacific survey of a road from Pasco to Lewiston along the Snake river has been completed. The Pasco, Portland and Pacific Railway company on the north side of the Columbia river survey is finished and estimates of the cost of construction are now being made.

Other enterprises are being formulated in to shape, such as the First National bank, capital $50,000.

The Grand Hotel Company, capital $60,000.

The Pasco Lumber and Manufacturing Company, capital $25,000, is already chartered and in operation. The Totman House Company, capital $50,000, and other enterprises are being established, including a large irrigating company, etc.

Hon. Fred T. Dubois on the Question of Idaho's Statehood.

Irrigation, Silver and Lead the Great Questions —The People Must Rise Above Mere Politics—Mormon Vote Not Desired.

EAGLE ROCK, Idaho Sept 20.—Hon Fred T. Dubois delegate in congress from this territory addressed a large concourse at the Bingham county fair as follows, to day

Ladies and Gentlemen:—It affords me great pleasure to be with you during your fair week and to have the privilege of addressing you this evening on the most important subject which in any age or in any land, has engaged the attention and thoughtful consideration of intelligent people No subject approaches in dignity or responsibility, or opens up wider fields of human progress than the admission of a patriotic community into full fellowship with the grand states of the American Union

For reasons which can be briefly stated, our people have been prevented from giving the question of statehood that calm and earnest study which it deserves. In the first place we were until within a few years, geographically, off the main line of travel, and settlers seeking new homes in new regions, were carried past us either to the north or south

When I came to the territory nine years ago there were let be more than 30 000 people and no railroads save the partly completed Utah & Northern running north and south The property valuation was but a few million dollars there were no school facilities to speak of, and mining was almost the sole industry Before 1880 placer mining so upset the attention of nearly all our people as it was the early inducement held out to settlers. The Wood river country was opened up in 1881, the Coeur d Alenes a few years later and smaller quartz mining camps in different sections of the territory from 1882 to 1888 Agriculture and stock raising and general business was stimulated by the richness and extent of the mining products, and we find within our borders to-day more than 100,000 people and $50,000 000 of property

Our rapid increase in population and wealth would have caused discussion of the advantages of statehood, but that the legislation of the energetic and intelligent pioneers who built up new countries had it not been for the Mormon incubus, which hung like a dark shadow over her fair dominions and the determination of our Northern friends to attach themselves to Washington territory There could be no peace in a movement for statehood if the danger of Mormon control in our political affairs was probable, and recognizing this fact, and believing it useless to attempt to gain admission with the Mormon question in politics the Northern counties whose people earnest in desired statehood sought to join their fortunes with Washington their argument was that statehood for Washington was certain and statehood for Idaho impossible Those who appreciated the resources of Idaho and the patriotism of our own people, enraged upon the fight for the supremacy of law and republican institutions and for the integrity of the territory, and carried them through hand in hand, to a successful close. These most important questions engaged the entire attention of our people and it was not until last December that the beginning of the second session of the last congress that we were certain we had an undivided territory, freed from the dangers of Mormon control

The very moment it became a fact that segregation or annihilation was the only hope of the Mormon citizens, regardless of party affiliations were determined that no theocracy should control our politics the people turned with one accord and eagerly to statehood Voicing their sentiments I introduced bills in congress for our admission and secured unanimous reports in favor of an enabling act from the democratic territorial committee of the house, and the republican territorial committee of the senate. It was the short session of three months—two practically for but little is done up after the holidays—and the appropriation bills, (and long and tortuous in arriving for political advantage over the admission of the Dakotas, Washington and Montana) retarded the passage of our bill New Mexico was excluded at this short session also which caused some feeling among her friends and we considered that Idaho was in the right attitude in deserting the unanimous endorsement of the committees on the statement of her claims Keeping fully abreast with public sentiment Governor Stevenson would not call for a constitutional convention, shortly after the close of congress. Governor Shoup, who succeeded him supplemented the call of Governor Stevenson with another for a constitutional convention the democratic and republican conventions met and arranged for the selection of delegates The convention assembled on July 4 and continued in session until August 6. It was composed of as able honorable and sincere men as ever came together in any territory for a similar purpose Every delegate was actuated by the one desire of framing such instrument as would insure its speedy adoption by congress. I was present during its deliberations and say, without any fear of contradiction that the highest and most patriotic motives actuated and guided the decisions of the convention, from beginning to end. No comb nat ons were formed or attempted to be formed, for the political advancement of any party or individual Men there were, no doubt, in the convention possessed of a laudable ambition for political preferment in the new state, for themselves or party but this ambition in no wise interfered with the honest discharge of the higher duty which they had taken upon themselves, of laying the sure and safe foundation for a grand and prosperous state. Differences of opinion there were, as must always be the result when intelligent men consult concerning subjects of such grave import, but they were honest differences and were always cheerfully yielded by the minority The highest testimony to the patriotism and ability of the convention was the crowning of their completed work with harmony The result of their labor and well performed duty has been given to you in a constitution, which can be adversely criticised only by those who have fixed ideas on some particular subject different from the combined judgment of the convention Taken as an entire instrument, I think it will be conceded by congress and all fair men that it is as well rounded comprehensive, and suitable to our condition as that of any similar document ever presented to a people

I do not deem it necessary nor will I weary you by discussing it in detail. I will briefly say that some general and broad reasons won it to the advantage of us all, that every vote possible be gotten and this fall in favor of the constitution The growth and prosperity yea, the life itself of Idaho is dependent on irrigation silver and lead The more encouragement these three great sources of our wealth receive the more we will prosper in every avenue of business Given the encouragement to which we claim they are entitled and once the greatest common wealths on the American continent will quickly spring into life on the now arid plains of Idaho There are something like 5,000 000 acres of land in Idaho which are now uncultivated, which are susceptible of the highest cultivation and which can only be utilized by irrigation While we are blest by generous nature with more water than that possessed by any other section of the arid region perhaps still there is not enough for our fullest expansion, nor were we ever able with our natural means to carve and distribute what we have by and of extensive canals and reservoirs In a little speech which I made in Congress on this subject I urge the position that our people were opposed to granting subsidies of land to railroads as a reward for the construction of canals Idaho is more fortunate than any of her sister territories, in this that none of our land has been subsidized With the exception of a little strip of about forty miles along the northern Pacific all the land within our borders will eventually belong to the state I intend to maintain my position on that subject and object to any subsidies of land for canal purposes to corporations I do not think either that it is to the advantage of the people when it the soil who are the main stay of all countries to have the water supply under the control of corporations The land and water question can be treated as one and go together When the settler takes up inland and buys a ditch or buys a ranch he should acquire right at the same time to a sufficient quantity of water to cultivate his land. Land is worthless in the midst of Idaho without water, and no man or set of men shall control more of the water than is needed for all than they actually use for themselves in the cultivation of the soil

It is very dangerous to give the absolute title to water to speculators for they can by large reservoirs at as will place the rancher and miner at their mercy Large reservoirs, storage basins and canals should be built and the control of these immense artificial water supplies rest in the general government, as the state should think that a good plan would be for the general government to give these and lands to the state and allow it to reclaim them, the same as in low country like Florida, for instance they gave the swamp lands to the state on the admission to the Union However no matter what the will made de ails will be all recognize the imperative necessity of government aid for the reclamation of our arid lands. It is not a pot real question with us nor can it be in congress. When Idaho become a state, we will elect two United States senators and a member of congress who will vote and labor for a satisfactory adjustment of this most important question. I will make no difference whether the senators and members are democrats or republicans, there can be no question as to their position in regard to irrigation

The same can be said with equal truth in regard to the silver question Party lines are not drawn The Southern members, with great unanimity are in favor of silver no matter whether democrats or republicans and in the North both democrats and republicans are for and against our chief industry The South was devastated by the war They need money to build up their shattered country Industries are springing into life there and coin money is needed to make the exchange and enveloping the whole over southern state We have the precious white metal in our hills and ask only that it be treated fairly and if one ing, and that it be allowed to take its proper place as money All we ask is that silver certificates be issued based on silver but I am opposed to the present law which we will wrench with energy and pluck from the reluctant and solemn hills and place in the vaults and country vaults of the country We not only ask but demand this as our right and we want two United States senators and a member of congress who will work to enforce our demand In the bill which will be given to every republican in Idaho when the dis trict is taken off silver and it remains to its proper and legitimate use will be put a dollar rancher, wage worker and business man in the territory It makes no difference whether Idaho sends desperate or republican senators or members so far as this proposition is concerned There is not a man within the hearing of my voice who would vote for any one to represent him in congress whose position was not clear and unmistakable on this subject The same sentiment prevails in every section of the territory and besides, no one could gain the confidence of the people to the extent that he could reasonably aspire to these high and honorable positions who did not represent the wishes of the entire community on these vital questions

Lead is not exactly in the same category politically as irrigation and silver but there is the more reason why we should have senators and members to represent our interests by their votes on this most important proposition In their bill for a general reduction of the tariff in the last congress the democratic party proposed a reduction of the tariff on lead ore from 1½ cents per pound to a of one cent per pound or of from $30 per ton to $15 per ton This proposed reduction was a matter of little moment compared with the ruling of a republican secretary of the treasury Mr Sherman and a democratic secretary of the treasury Mr Fairchild that foreign lead ore should be admitted free of duty When the clause relating to the tariff on lead came up in the house I had the pleasure and honor of introducing an amendment which provided that there should be no reduction of the present tariff $30 per ton—and that end when combined with old earthen should be subject to duty no matter which metal was the component of chief value. The proposition was beaten by a straight party vote It is fair to say that there was not a democratic member from any lead silver producing region It is possible that a democratic majority of congress from Montana or Idaho would have voted with his party, and not the interest of his own section but without such a party measure but his influence and example would have been used in order to protect the interests of his own people Last year in 1888 the lead production in the United States was 1 000 tons 7 000 tons of foreign lead came in free of duty and 40 000 tons from Mexico nearly all the lead produced in the United States is argentiferous and of a rather heavy and quite three fourths of it is produced in the territories It is the greatest of all the lead producing regions, and of this production one third of the entire product in 1888 the United States consumed more lead than it produced and the while many lead mines in Idaho and Utah were compelled to shut down owing to the low price for lead and were unworkable, good prospects would not be opened up for the same reason The law relating to the tariff on lead ore I plain enough It says There shall be a duty of 1½ cents per pound on lead ore All the confusion and injustice that is to our section has arisen from the interpretation of the language of the law and as to what constitutes lead ore All practical mining men and mine superintendents, assayers and miners agree that all ores containing lead are lead ores that if any ore contains 5 per cent lead it is even there received reported that ores containing lead ore The former secretaries to whom I referred interpreted the law to mean that if the gold or silver in the ores was more valuable than the lead the ores were not lead ores Thus when a client in error at one but has stood to our great injury It look now as though the present secretary of the treasury would accept the plain meaning of the law as congress intended put it in force, to the great benefit of the lead producing country that we have two senators and a member who will by their votes, put it out of the power of any secretary to admit Mexican lead free of duty. There was not a time during the last session but what I could have secured the United States for less than $1 per 100 pounds—yet the average price for our home produced lead was $1 60 per 100 pounds. Had the duty been paid on the foreign lead our lead would never have been worth less than $2 per 100 pounds

Our miner and every class of people from the Mexican miner The men who protect our hills are the pioneers of civilized men They are sturdy, honest intelligent citizens from the best stock of their country of from the same pluck and courage need the Old World who come to this new land and build states Nearly three quarters of the population of Mexico remains to-day as it was a hundred years ago Their wages are from 50 cents to $1 per day for their lives or children Our miners cannot compete with them nor should they be compelled to do so The Mexican servant never eats a meal at which the American miner in his family does not appear even upon $1 to $1 40 per day Of course I am of one mind on this question, and no matter who represents us as senators or members their influence will be felt in guarding our lead silver industries and it is possible that a democratic majority in congress will admit lead ore free of duty and again in Idaho will receive an impetus which will add prosperity to every section of the territory

I will state that one more point in regard to our mineral industries deserves attention Our prosperity would be retarded by statehood and especially that branch of our industry That provision of the act passed by the forty ninth congress which practically exempts mines from taxation for ten years to encourage the development of the mineral resources of the country has been of great benefit to Idaho and I am in favor of its extension for a term of years. The first year's taxation on mines and mining property in Idaho will be about $150 000 and this will be largely increased in the years to come. Our mines are developed by actual work and improvements and the money thus expended is taxed as the law applies only to ores in sight. Any capitalist will not invest where he cannot control the purchase, and we are thus deprived of the extensive influx of capital necessary to develop our resources

I have not attempted to go into petty details as to the advisability of embodying this or that individual proposition in the constitution neither have I attempted to prove whether this provision or that one should or should not be given to every individual in Idaho when the district is taken off silver and it remains to its proper and legitimate use will be put a dollar in every man's pocket, public lands to every new settler and will give to Idaho her school and state purposes land in value of which will largely compensate for any added cost of a state government if indeed there will be any expense over the territorial form I have not attempted to convince you that the constitution and statehood is worthy of your support for it would be a reflection on your intelligence to do so I shall be pleased, and my object accomplished if what I have said will induce each one of you to vote and to use his best endeavors to get others to vote What is most to be feared is apathy, owing to the lack of an organized movement Every legal voter should be brought to the polls and a full ballot cast I think we have built a 900 legal voters in the territory and 9 000 votes should be cast It will not do to go to congress with a paltry showing of 7000 or 8000 votes It will appear on the surface as though we were in different While it is extremely important that the largest vote possible be cast it is equally important that they be legal ones

Three successive legislatures and the constitutional convention have declared that the followers of the Mormon hierarchy are not capable of being good citizens, and have unanimously debarred them from participation in the glorious privileges of American citizenship so long as the bold allegiance to any alien government within our government and it behooves every good and loyal citizen to see to it that these states of a theocracy vote neither for nor against the constitution I have heard it urged that they be allowed to vote as it would swell the number of votes and do no harm This in my opinion is a most unsound view The judgment of the people of Idaho on this subject has been deliberately made up and clearly expressed and there must be no compromise of principle on a question so far reaching in its consequences No one desires statehood more than I do. No one is more decidedly alive to the advantages which it will bring to a people who have been most kind and generous to me. No one has tried or will try harder than myself to bring about the fruition of our hopes yet to good would it be, dearly bought if the price were one back hand step from the grand and proud position which Idaho occupies as the defender of American institutions and the purity of American homes against the loathsome incubus of Mormonism with its practices of concubinage and treacherous treason We want the voter of American citizenship and I have the greatest confidence that Bingham will always will be in the front rank for progress and good government

SALARIES IN THE NEW STATE

Palouse Gazette

Some one, possibly a democratic member of the constitutional convention who signed the constitution after it was printed, has made a calculation this week that the new state constitution will be too high priced costing the state $96 750 annually for salaries, while he outlines one which would cost only $49 700 per year Another writer in the Tacoma Ledger says that if we are containing per cent and $50 000 This is mere chin trap and the figures are worthless Let us look at the 2nd carry the new law there will be

Five supreme judges at $4000	$20 000
Nine district judges at $3000	27 000
Twelve superior judges, at $3000	36 000
Twelve superior clerks, at $2000	24 000
One supreme clerk at $3000	3 000
One reporter, at $2000	2 000
	$112 000

To all yearly judicial expenses

The eighteen judges provided by the new constitution take the place of the thirty-eight judges that now draw salaries and fees The four district and supreme judges now receive salaries of $4000 each per annum, together with their traveling expenses which usually amount to over $1000 more The probate judges now receive annual salaries ranging from $400 to $1000 in addition to fees for all work done Total amount paid to probate judges will range $3000 and There are now thirty four probate judges at $1500 each amounting to $51 000 four district and supreme judges at $4000 each amounting to $16 000 and twenty-four judges whose fees amounted in the aggregate to the enormous sum of over $60 000 last year making the total cost to the judiciary at present to swell the enormous amount of $131 000 as against $96 000 provided by the new constitution

In Whitman county the records will show that the clerk took from $1 500 to $2 000 out of the county fund after each term of court, one him for fees in criminal cases Add to this the fees paid in civil cases which aggregate at least $1 000 per annum and it makes the court clerk cost the county $2500 The fifteen in the territory will aggregate more than $100 000

The district court for the year ending May 1889 cost Whitman county $6 000 A large item of this expense consisted of witness fees Witnesses must while about the court room for days waiting their turn By holding only two terms of court in a year an enormous amount of business would of necessity accumulate in a county like this. Say there are twenty criminal cases for trial with an average of five witnesses on each side, summoned on the first day of the meeting of the grand jury and held until the trial A great expense is incurred To this can be added the cost of keeping the prisoners in jail awaiting trial for which the county paid last year the sum of $2 800

Under the new system these items of expense will be reduced to the minimum as a court will be open at all times When a criminal is arrested he will be immediately arraigned and arraigned and the case set down for a day with witnesses or jurors not summoned They will be called the case tried in one day and will soon and jurors dismissed at a cost of perhaps $100 as against $1000 at present

Thus it is evident that while the new will has an infinitely better judiciary system, the cost will be less than at present The constitution puts all fees in the treasury and puts all of salary which is as it should be Any one the figures carefully and you will be convinced that these provisions of the new constitution are economic and effective as far as the judiciary is concerned.

IN THE FIELDS OF SPORT.

New York Now Leads in the Race for the League Pennant.

Boston Is in Second Place and Chicago Third—The Murphy Murphy Pigot—A Match Between Myer and Carroll

The New Yorks are again in the lead in the league championship race and as the season has but two weeks more to run it looks as if they would keep it to the end. The Bostons are weak in the pitcher's box as they do not play well together, and their chances of winning the pennant are rapidly becoming less As soon the season is over Clarkson has been the only effective pitcher and the Boston papers have long been aware of his inability to pitch a game every day The directors have done nothing to remedy the defect except to secure Daly who has not assisted the club at all New York, on the other hand is strong in the pitcher's box Keefe is in fine condition and O'Day is a good man to fall back on during a championship contest

The season began the week with 20 victories and 40 defeats and a percentage of 333 and at the close they had 70 victories 49 defeats and a percentage of 588 a gain of 10 points On 3 outings by hitting they beat the Bostons out of two games which with Philadelphia's victory over Boston put them in the lead They played pennant ball and won every game On Wednesday they took one more from the Washingtons on Thursday one from the Philadelphias On Friday they downed the Quakers in a first game and the second was a tie On Saturday they gave Philadelphia another drubbing.

Boston's playing during the week was wretched They opened the week at Philadelphia with 7 errors and 10 defeats and a percentage of 640 They closed at Washington with their colors considerably lowered They now have 72 victories and 42 defeats and a percentage of 638 a loss of two points The team work has been very poor and the players have not worked together The Boston Herald says there is not a spirit that is suggestive of anything like enthusiasm in the playing but rather of men who are playing for their salary only and of men who have a task to perform and who perform it in the most perfunctory manner During the week they lost one game to the Philadelphias beat them out of two and downed the Washingtons twice and had them once

The fight for third place is now between Chicago and Philadelphia with 64 chances about even's decided Chicago has moved up into the coveted place and leads the Quakers by eight points

Indianapolis has given up six in place to Pittsburg

It is as now as if Brooklyn would win the association pennant hauls down It now has a lead of 61 points over St Louis The Athletics are a bad third

BASEBALL NOTES

The New Yorks lead the league in club batting The Bostons have made 1000 base hits this season

St Louis will profit several Brooklyn games in the latter week

Indianapolis has a strong outfield in Seery, Andrews and McGarthy

Anson is still confident that Chicago will capture the league pennant

The Washingtons are going to are dissatisfied with the playing of the Senators

The Louisvilles will be reorganized A few of the plays will be retained

Manager Loftus says Cleveland will take fourth place The Colts are now fifth

Baldwin has made only two errors in fourteen games at shortstop for the Pittsburgs.

Pitcher Conway for applying clear cuts to his man and reports a slight improvement

Most of the Philadelphians are holding over their present salaries in expectation of the best average in the league

There is talk of exhibition games for the champion ship series. If the Washingtons and Bostons

The fielding is gaining strength, that pitchers must be put back five feet. The batting is now quite what is desired

Hawkins who used to catch Keefe and Welsh in form and was later short stop for New York, is now running a team at Salem Mass.

League Umpire Curry has been released His days his dismissal to his attempt to immunize courtesy among the players by imposing fines

Cincinnati has secured of the lustless and dispirited Leonard and is talking with Brooklyn which finds a use for him, relative to a trade

It is dent Brush of the Indianapolis club says that no offer, however large, would be considered for the sale of the Indianapolis ranchise He says he sees no reason for selling

President Young has approved Manager Mutrie's suggestion that two umpires shall officiate in all games to be played between the New Yorks and Boston clubs for the rest of the season

The Boston club manager must never invested money to better advantage than they did the $10 000 they invested in John Clarkson. The fact that Clarkson's share of Ten Thousand Dollar Kelly for the terrific slugging of Big Brouthers have not

THE NATIONAL GAME.

Eastern Crop-Weather Week Ending September

Summary of the Reports Received From the Different States and Bureau—The Outlook.

The appended information and weather and crop of the United States from the National Crop-Weather week ending September 14

TEMPERATURE.

The week ending September 14 was about the usual over the country generally on the whole conditions of temperature in the central valleys 3 degrees to 5 degrees while in the about the normal temperature in Colorado and Utah about 5 degrees colder than usual from Dakota to the Pacific coast

The temperature for the month to September 14 has been slightly and farmer in New England, Middle Atlantic and Lake States, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, but in the Southern States the cool temperature has been favorable for cotton, corn and other crops, especially in the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, where the temperature has been slightly above the normal

PRECIPITATION.

There has been less than the usual precipitation during the week generally over the principal agricultural districts, including the Atlantic coast from Maine to Georgia, and in the Southern States, also over the Lake region, including Northern Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Eastern Iowa and Northern Illinois, and in the Missouri valley in Nebraska and Kansas, and in the Red River valley of the North, in Minnesota and Dakota, where the rainfall was generally heavy and in excess of the normal

GENERAL REMARKS

The weather during the week has been favorable throughout the country for corn in progress and a large proportion of the excellent corn crop is now safe from frost

Recent rains have placed the ground in good condition for plowing in the northern Mississippi valley but fall sown wheat is suffering for want of rain in Michigan Ohio, and Indiana, for want of rain.

The prospects of the cotton crop are greatly improved by the late warm weather in Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana Cotton picking is progressing rapidly and will have been completed in Louisiana Cotton picking is nearly finished in Texas and will be completed in Texas before the end of the month but reports from Texas have the slightly pessimistic tone and the ground is generally too dry for plowing

Reports from Alabama, state that cotton is opening rapidly but the crop is still backward in South Carolina the good weather is favorable for cotton picking and other crops are in excellent condition

In New York Pennsylvania and New Jersey the crops were improved by favorable weather The winds were only severe in Pennsylvania and New York and did but little damage to corn and buckwheat The crop of potatoes is reported as very good in Pennsylvania and New York and an average crop in New Jersey Apples are reported as a light crop in Pennsylvania and New York and a good crop in New Jersey Peaches are reported as a light crop in Pennsylvania and New York and an average crop in New Jersey Grapes are reported as a light crop in Pennsylvania and New York and an average crop in New Jersey

The weather in the Southern States was favorable for the crops especially cotton and corn Rains were needed in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, but were beneficial to pastures and to fall plowing

Reports from Kentucky indicate that the tobacco crop is very good The corn crop is reported as very good The weather was favorable for curing tobacco and corn and it would be wise economy to receive and litter but if the latter is not available

The weather over the Pacific coast for the past week was favorable for hop picking and fall seeding
